

FLORIDA HOTEL FIRE KILLS 21

Blaze Ends Gala Week

... MISS AMERICA RESCUED

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP)—Fire on the lower floors of the 300-room Roosevelt Hotel sent smoke billowing up through the building and brought death to 21 persons in the tragic end of a gala Gator Bowl week Sunday.

Flames never got above the second floor, but most of the dead were on the upper floors, where firemen's ladders wouldn't reach and where heavy gray smoke blocked their attempts to find their way through dark hallways to the two stairways.

The reigning Miss America—Donna Axum of El Dorado, Ark.—was among several hospitalized and treated for smoke inhalation. A member of the Miss America party, 19-year-old William Fielden of Miami, was a hero in the rescue of the national beauty queen.

Eyewitnesses reported seeing two persons tumble to their death when improvised ropes of sheets and blankets broke apart.

However the medical examiner who checked the bodies said only Mrs. Marian F. Curry, 43, of Santiago, Chile, and formerly of Greensboro, N.C., died of multiple fractures. An assistant fire chief died of an apparent heart attack and the other victims died of asphyxiation by smoke, the examiner reported.

Ladders Too Short

Navy helicopters plucked to safety others who fled to the roof of the 12-story structure. The city's two 100-foot aerial ladder trucks reached only to the eighth floor of the Adams St. structure.

Many of the 479 guests were still in night clothing or partly attired when the fire from an undetermined cause broke out at about 7:45 a.m., apparently in or near the Emerald Room, a few steps up from the main lobby. The room was used as Gator Bowl press headquarters the past three days.

The opponents in the Gator Bowl football game—North Carolina and the Air Force Academy—were staying at other hotels.

Frank Howard, coach of the Clemson football team and a guest of the Roosevelt for the Gator Bowl game, said he and his wife were having breakfast in the hotel coffee shop when they smelled smoke and fled.

Ex-Coach Escapes

Harry Mehre, former football coach at the University of Georgia and the University of Mississippi, was with the Howards. Mehre also escaped safely.

George Olson, executive vice president and general manager of the Gator Bowl, said all players on the Manhattan College and the University of Florida basketball teams escaped in night clothes and bare feet. The teams played in the Gator Bowl tournament which ended Friday night.

Describing his rescue of Miss America, Fielden said: "I found Donna leaning out her 10th-floor window, choking and gasping for breath. Her chaperone was unconscious on the floor."

Fielden said he picked up the chaperone, Lucille Previti, and told Donna to follow him. They retreated to Fielden's room across the hall, where the smoke was less dense. Firemen soon led them to safety.

Miss Axum and her chaperone were reported in good condition at a hospital where they were treated.

Asphyxiation Blamed
Chief Fire Marshal E. C. McDermott said asphyxiation caused most of the deaths. He said there was strong evidence that the blaze began in the Emerald Room but the cause was unknown.

Hotel doorman Alton Joseph Crowden called the first alarm into the fire department. He said he was in the lobby and "suddenly smoke poured out from everywhere."

Firemen found guests hanging from windows, gasping for air and pleading for rescue. Some lapsed into unconsciousness.

On the street below, police bellowed through megaphones for the people to remain inside their rooms with the doors closed to await rescue. Many who were led to safety by firemen wearing oxygen masks assembled across the street and gazed helplessly up at those still trapped.

Most of the guests were out and the fire was under control at 9:30 a.m., an hour and 45 minutes after it began. They took refuge in the nearby Snyder Memorial Methodist Church before being sent to other hotels.

Firemen Dead
Among the dead was Asst. Fire Chief J. R. Romy, 49, who apparently died of a heart attack in a hotel room where he went to lead the occupants to safety.

Another victim was Wade Hildinger, Buffalo, N.Y., vice president in charge of sales for National Gypsum Co.

Another was Jim Swick, president of the Copeland Sausage Co., of Alachua, Fla. In lives lost it was by far the worst disaster in Jacksonville history.

A 1901 fire which leveled half of what was then the city took only seven lives.

"People Panicked"
William H. Johnston, who bought the Roosevelt in 1960 from the Meyer Hotel chain and spent $1 million renovating the 34-year-old building, said, "The hotel was as fireproof as you can get a building. It is a sad thing that these people didn't stay in their rooms."

"The smoke just built up and people panicked," Johnston said. He said he was not at the moment concerned about the damage and had no accurate estimate.

Cyprus Hit By New Fighting; Liaison Group Seeks Solution

Nicosia, Cyprus (UPI)—New armed clashes flared Sunday between Greek and Turkish Cypriots as a newly formed political liaison committee met urgently to try to end bloodshed threatening to widen into a conflict between two NATO nations—Greece and Turkey.

A rapid exchange of shots echoed through Nicosia for at least 30 minutes Sunday and British Royal Air Force patrols, their jet-like land-rovers roaring through the capital's deserted streets, rushed toward the Turkish quarter to investigate.

There were no reports on any casualties in the new fighting that followed a week of pitched battles and shootings between Greek and Turkish Cypriots on this Mediterranean island nation. Unconfirmed reports have put the overall death toll at 200, with countless wounded.

The firing was within earshot of the new committee of Greek, Turkish and British diplomats and military men meeting with British Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys in the British high commissioner's residence.

Destroyers Ready
But even as the committee met, a Turkish government spokesman in Ankara confirmed that 11 Turkish destroyers were standing by at Mersin, only 60 miles from the coast of Cyprus, and about 10,000 Turkish infantrymen also had been placed on a stand-by basis.

The spokesman also confirmed reports that Turkish jet fighters and paratroopers had been placed on a 24-hour alert.

(In Washington, about 50 Turkish students picketed the White House Sunday, protesting the strife in Cyprus.)

The new liaison committee, formed after intensive consultations between Sandys and local officials, wasted no time going into consultations.

Neutral Zone Sought
A communique after the meeting said Sandys called for withdrawal of Greek and Turkish "fighters" from their strongholds on either side of the cease-fire line set up Saturday and their replacement by British troops.

The communique said this would create a "neutral zone between the two sides." It said the meeting "considered what steps could be taken to create security and confidence and to restore normal conditions of life" on this three-year-old republic where the Greek Cypriot population outnumbered the Turks by about 4-to-1.

The new communal fighting started eight days ago, in a dispute centered on fears by the Turkish minority that constitutional changes proposed by the Greek-headed government would reduce rights of the Turkish Cypriots.

Greece, Turkey and Britain—the three guaranteeing powers under the 1960 agreement that gave this former British colony independence—have set up a joint command under Maj. Gen. Peter Young of Britain.

But President Archbishop Makarios indicated Saturday night Cyprus might reject the help of Greece and Turkey and rely on Britain alone to end the communal strife.

Texas Puts Regulation On Small Loan Firms

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Texas this year became the 49th state to enact statutory regulations on small loan companies.

At least 11 other states altered their small loan legislation, according to State Government News, published monthly by the Council of State Governments.

An article summarizing such legislation reviewed Nebraska's special legislative session with these words: "The Nebraska Legislature, meeting in special session in November, revised the state loan laws, reducing the number of loan categories from eight to three, reducing the maximum amount of small loans from $3,000 to $1,500 and maximum rates in that category on amounts more than $500."

"The 1963 regular session had enacted changes, but the State Supreme Court voided them in several installment sales decisions."

The new Texas law provides for licensing procedures and required all lenders to be licensed by Nov. 21.

The act set a $1,500 limit on small loans, and a maximum charge amounting to 23% simple annual interest.

By comparison, Nebraska's new interest laws allow a 30% maximum charge on small loans up to $300.

Prohibition

The Texas statute prohibits out-of-state small loan companies from opening new offices. National companies may retain offices they held prior to Jan. 8, 1963.

States which raised authorized amounts which could be loaned to single borrowers included: Arizona, from $300 to $1,000; Connecticut, from $600 to $1,000; Indiana and Michigan, from $500 to $1,000, and West Virginia, from $300 to $800.

According to a report in the Wall Street Journal, these changes brought to 28 the number of states which permit loans of $1,000 or more to single borrowers.

Five states which raised loan limits also reduced maximum interest charges.

Small loan companies may now, for the first time, sell life or disability insurance in Illinois, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, New Mexico and West Virginia.

—NO PERMANENT DIVISION OF GERMANY— LBJ, Erhard Look For Better Red Relations

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Johnson City, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson and West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard pledged Sunday that they will "continue to explore all opportunities" to improve East-West relations, ease tensions and promote a just and stable peace.

Johnson and Erhard climaxed nearly two days of talks at the President's ranch-style holiday White House by issuing a communique that emphasized their willingness to seek accommodations with the communist bloc. The document added:

"They continue to hope that this effort of the Western powers will meet a constructive response from the Soviet Union."

This was the key section of the 800-word communique, particularly in the light of a German spokesman's statement Saturday night that Erhard feels Soviet responses to conciliatory Western moves is "not very encouraging."

'Deep In The Heart'

Issuance of the communique capped a day that saw the two leaders attend church and go to a huge, indoor, Texas-style barbecue—where a choir from St. Mary's Parochial School of Fredericksburg sang in German two stanzas of "Deep in the Heart of Texas."

Among other key points in the communique that followed Johnson's first full-scale conference with a foreign leader were these:

—The two men "agreed that there should be no arrangement that would serve to perpetuate the status quo of a divided Germany." And they share a "commitment to the peaceful reunification of the German people in freedom, by self-determination."

—The United States and Germany will cooperate closely in the operation of Peace Corps that have been established by the two countries. In this connection, Johnson is sending Sargent Shriver, the U.S. Peace Corps director, to Bonn for discussions.

Army Staying

—Johnson renewed an American commitment "to maintain the present six-division level of combat forces in Germany, as long as they are needed." The President gave assurances that the United States "would continue to meet its commitments in Berlin."

—The two leaders agreed that the keystone of Western policy must be an effort to increase "the strength and effectiveness of the emerging Atlantic partnership."

Johnson and Erhard called on all members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to strengthen NATO. And they took the position that the year-old American proposal for a multi-nation force of surface ships armed with Polaris missiles "would provide a new means of strengthening Western defense."

Get-Acquainted
In a sense, the Johnson-Erhard meetings represented a get-acquainted effort, since both men are new to their offices.

Other points covered in the communique included support for freer trade in agricultural as well as industrial products, and promises to cooperate in easing the U.S. balance-of-payments problem.

It was a busy, varied day for Johnson and Erhard in advance of the latter's departure for Bonn by jet in the late afternoon.

Breakfast, church, conference, barbecue, conference. So they had food for the body and food for the soul.

Helicopters whisked the two men and their parties from the Johnson Ranch to Fredericksburg, a community of Americans of German descent a few miles away, for a civic welcome for Erhard and services at Bethlehem Lutheran Church.

The chancellor must have felt pretty much at home. He heard scarcely a word of English.

Rocky Will Enter Oregon's Primary

Albany, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller intensified his bid for the Republican nomination for president Sunday by announcing he would enter the Oregon presidential preference primary.

Rockefeller, only declared candidate for the GOP nomination, will open his Oregon campaign officially in February. The primary will be held May 15.

The New York governor will be campaigning in New Hampshire and California next month. He announced previously that his name would be entered in the primaries of those two states—New Hampshire on March 10 and California on June 2.

Rockefeller's statement that he would enter the Oregon primary came at a time when his campaign appeared in need of a shot in the arm.

No Significant Gains

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona had been running far ahead of Rockefeller in the unofficial competition before the assassination of President Kennedy. But, although Goldwater strength has slipped markedly since the assassination, Rockefeller appears to have made no significant gains.

An Associated Press poll published last week showed that Richard M. Nixon, former vice president and the unsuccessful GOP candidate in 1960, and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge had gained as prospective nominees, while Goldwater slipped.

The race originally was seen as a contest between the conservative Goldwater and the liberal Rockefeller.

But Republican thinking has been turning more toward a middle-of-the-roader—such as Nixon, Lodge or possibly Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania.

Oregon will have 18 delegates to the Republican national convention next July. While this is a relatively small number of the 655 needed for nomination, victories in state primaries have important psychological and public relations impact.

For Two Ballots

The candidate who wins the Oregon primary is assured of support of the delegation for at least two ballots, or until his over-all support falls below 35% of the total.

Oregon's governor, Mark O. Hatfield, has been mentioned as a potential nominee for vice president on a Rockefeller ticket.

Rockefeller will resume Friday the New Hampshire campaign that he suspended after Kennedy was shot Nov. 22. Accompanied by Mrs. Rockefeller, he will visit Portsmouth and Concord.

Greek Ship Sinks Into Sea Grave

London (UPI)—The cruise liner Lakonia slipped silently to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean Sunday exactly one week after she was wracked by fire and explosions in a disaster on the high seas that claimed the lives of 155 passengers and crew members.

The only witness to the death throes of the smoldering 20,134-ton Greek ship which caught fire during a gala Christmas voyage to a sunny resort island were tug boat seamen trying to tow her to port for salvage.

The listing ship sank stern first in 6,000 feet of water 275 miles off the coast of Morocco. She was being towed to Gibraltar by three tug boats.

Sinking Described

Reports reaching London by radio from the tug captains described the sinking.

"All of a sudden, she rolled over, hesitated a moment on the surface and then plunged under," said Karden Van Der Hoek, skipper of the Dutch tug Clyde. "It all took only three minutes at the most."

Van Der Hoek said, "She must have sprung a leak below the water line. The Lakonia is now unsalvageable."

None of the three tugs had put men aboard the ship for fear she might go down and carry them with her.

"Lottery"

Trygve Gaasmo, captain of the Norwegian tug boat Herkules, said the Lakonia sank at 9 a.m. EST. He said his firm would not be compensated for the work done since last Monday in towing the ship toward Gibraltar.

"This salvage business is a lottery," Gaasmo said. "And this time we lost."

Laborite Recovers

London (UPI)—George Brown, deputy leader of the British Labor Party, will be released from the hospital Monday after recovering from surgery, a party spokesman announced.

University's Growth In 1963 Holds Sobering Implications For Future

Growth and accomplishments of the University of Nebraska came into sharp focus during 1963, but there were sobering implications for the immediate future of higher education in the state.

Most spectacular was the all-time record enrollment of 11,450 students for the fall semester—over 1,000 more than a year ago and over 2,000 more than in the fall of 1961. At this rate, the university's enrollment could approach the 20,000 mark in the early '70s.

Along with enrollment, the university building program provided visual evidence of steady growth in the physical plant. Buildings completed during the year included:

—Dormitories housing 967 students named in honor of two famous Nebraskans—Louise Pound and Willa Cather.

—Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery which attracted 65,000 persons during the first six months of operation. The gallery is located at the site of the old pharmacy building and near the former administration building which housed seven chancellors.

—Poultry complex at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics which provides facilities for research under controlled conditions.

Construction is proceeding on the new Behlen Physics Building and an agricultural library, and bids were let for another student dormitory. Workmen are remodeling Nebraska Hall and adding to the power plant.

Prince: U.S. Opposes Cambodian Neutrality

Phnom Penh, Cambodia (AP)—Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodian chief of state, charged Sunday that the United States opposes Cambodian neutrality. He threatened to sign a formal alliance with Red China which, he also disclosed, has offered Cambodia arms.

In a policy speech that opened a three-day "National Congress" the prince told 10,000 persons jammed into an open-air stadium that unless the West guarantees Cambodian neutrality, "We will be obliged to renounce our neutrality and negotiate a formal alliance with (Communist) China . . . "We owe our survival only to the determined support and the firm promise of intervention in our favor by the People's Republic of China . . . "The American imperialists consider that we will not be independent unless we accept U.S. control of our national life."

Reds Decorated

Coincident with his open threat to the West Sunday, Sihanouk made public a speech last Thursday at a ceremony during which he decorated 85 Chinese communist technicians for helping build a cement factory at Charkey Ting in southern Cambodia.

In that speech he described Red China as peace loving and congratulated it for the stand it took during last year's border dispute with India.

Sihanouk also defended Red China against charges of expansionist aims.

But in his Sunday speech he also held out hope that the West will agree to his demands for an international conference to guarantee Cambodia's sovereignty.

"We only aspire to live in peace and in good friendship with all countries," he added.

Sihanouk has demanded a conference of the same 14 nations that met at Geneva to guarantee the neutrality of neighboring Laos.

His proposal for similar treatment for Cambodia was greeted with alarm by two other neighbors, war-torn South Viet Nam and pro-Western Thailand. They denounced his bid as playing in to communist hands.

There was no immediate indication of how Sihanouk's latest ultimatum would effect recent Philippine efforts to patch up frosty U.S.-Cambodian relations.

Much of the friction stems from Sihanouk's belief that the United States and its Vietnamese allies are backing the "Free Khmer" movement of Cambodian rebels.

In Saigon, South Viet Nam's foreign ministry issued a communique Sunday saying it would not participate in any international conference on Cambodian neutrality. It said the conference would be exploited by communist propaganda and do Cambodia no good.

JFK's Last Book, 'Burden & Glory,' Due Out May 27

New York (UPI)—The late President John F. Kennedy's last book, "The Burden and the Glory," will be published on May 27, 1964, it was announced Sunday by Harper & Row, publishers.

The book will have a foreword by President Johnson and will be edited by Allan Nevins.

The book is a selection from Kennedy's speeches and statements from the fall of 1961 until his assassination on Nov. 22.

Miss America Tried To Aid Stricken Chaperone

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP)—The reigning Miss America, Donna Axum, tried to hold her unconscious chaperone in an open window to give her air during the Roosevelt Hotel fire disaster Sunday.

"I tried to hold her over the sill, but she kept slipping," said Miss Axum in a hospital news conference several hours later.

"Then she fell to the floor and I decided to leave her there because there was less smoke down there, and I could feel with my leg that she was still breathing."

Calling For Help

Miss Axum said she continued to lean out her 10th floor window, calling for help, until she and her chaperone, Lucille Previti, were rescued by a 19-year-old college student who broke into their room.

Miss Axum, smiling wanly but looking pretty in a white hospital gown, gave details of her experience during a televised news conference at Baptist Hospital where she was treated for smoke inhalation.

She and her chaperone were taken in wheel chairs to the board room of the hospital for the interview. The hospital said their conditions are good and they probably will be released Monday.

Miss Axum said she was awakened early Sunday morning by a phone ringing in the living room of her two-room suite, but she didn't answer because they weren't due for a morning call until a later hour.

"The next thing I knew, I smelled smoke and heard sirens," she said. "I told Lucille the hotel must be on fire. We looked in the hall and found it filled with smoke, so we decided to stay close to the window."

Collapsed "Lucille collapsed from the smoke and I finally gave up trying to hold her over the sill. I continued leaning out the window, calling for help, until we were rescued."

William Fielden of Miami broke into Miss America's suite. "I found Donna leaning out her window, choking and gasping for breath," he said. "Her chaperone was unconscious on the floor."

Miss Axum was staying at the Roosevelt Hotel while in Jacksonville for appearances at the weekend Gator Bowl activities.

When the ladies take hold of a situation, you can usually expect action.

And that's just what the South Dakota Cowbelles are attempting to do to help cattle feeders, who are now receiving the lowest prices in five years for fat cattle.

The cattlemen are winding up 1963 with severe financial losses.

If you ask cattlemen or livestock association members, you find they believe the mounting tonnage of imports is one of the key reasons behind depressed livestock prices.

Speedier Action

While the menfolk in the cattle business are asking for reasonable beef quotas on imports, the South Dakota gal is demanding much speedier action. And they hope to get it by making an appeal to U.S. housewives to be sure that the beef they buy was produced in this country.

Says Mrs. Winifred Reutter of White River, S.D., secretary-treasurer of the Millett County Cowbelles:

"I can't remember all of the statistics, but I do know that when the consumer eats a pound of imported beef then they eat a pound less of U.S. beef."

She said that the experts have been saying that imports don't affect the cattle market, but she said, "We are only small ranchers, yet our calves of approximately the same weight and number brought $1,000 less on the market this fall than last year."

Playwright Behan Hospitalized With Severe Injuries

Dublin (AP)—Irish playwright Brendan Behan was found unconscious with severe head injuries in suburban Dublin early Monday. Police said they believed he was the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

Behan was taken to Meath Hospital where he was detained for observation.

Behan, a 40-year-old stormy factor in the Irish and English theater, was found on Clogher Road in suburban Kinnadee.

For some time police were not certain of their tentative identification but his identity was established at the hospital.

Hospital authorities declined to discuss Behan's condition or the severity of his injuries. They merely said that he was being detained for observation.

Police reported that he had severe head injuries.

Wheel Tax Yields More Than Gas, Auto Levies

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Lincolinites get more return on the wheel tax dollar in city street and highway improvements than from the city's share of state gas taxes and auto registration fees.

City Finance Director James Mallon said this is indicated in comparison of the three revenue sources for the past five years.

Since 1958, the passenger car owner has paid a $4 wheel tax and this revenue has averaged $225,384 annually during the comparison period.

Averages $220,128

On the same passenger car, Lincolinites pay a state registration fee of $8 from which the city has averaged $220,128 annually, or less than the wheel tax, from state allocations.

Mallon estimates the typical Lincoln motorist will average 10,000 miles per year (a good part on city streets) and will pay state gas taxes totalling $50.

From the average $50 gas tax bill paid by Lincoln motorists, the city's allocation has averaged $201,308 for the past five years, or considerably less than the wheel tax.

"Ninety-nine cents of every wheel tax dollar collected from Lincoln motor vehicle owners goes into city streets," Mallon pointed out. "One cent is paid for collection services by the Lancaster County Treasurer's office."

"Biggest Bargain"

Mallon thinks the wheel tax dollar is Lincoln's biggest bargain compared with the street and highway use taxes allocated to the city by the state.

"Local taxes are used where they are collected," he observed, "but it's the old story for non-local taxes—a lot goes out but little comes back."

Mallon released this comparison summary of revenues for street improvements:

	Wheel Tax	Gas Tax	Auto Reg.
1958-59	$196,107	$192,917	$204,721
1959-60	216,827	196,413	221,177
1960-61	227,527	201,305	229,955
1961-62	236,377	203,991	231,601
1962-63	249,986	211,835	233,188
Total	$1,126,924	$1,006,541	$1,100,642
Average	$225,384	$201,308	$220,128

Sullivan Farm Given Conservation Award

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

The farm of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sullivan, Rt. 1, Lincoln, has been chosen a conservation award farm. The award, made by the Lancaster County Soil and Water Conservation District, typifies good farm practice.

Sullivan's program of conservation is a model for the Nebraska farm that has found a need to change conservation practices because of advances in machinery and methods.

The first terraces on the Sullivan farm were made with a one-way plow. Later a whirlwind terracer was used and most recently, the 15 miles of terraces on the 320-acre farm have been made larger to accommodate four-row equipment.

Contours Established

Contours have been established on 236 acres, with 11 acres in waterways. A farm pond was added.

Windbreaks are used for extra protection. A herd of Hereford cows gets the excess roughage in the Sullivan's program of making the best use of everything produced on the farm.

The Sullivans were presented a color picture of the farm after selection as conservation farm of the year.

Congress Eyes Windup Soon

Washington (P) — Confident that the required quorum will be here, Senate leaders looked Sunday to a final windup of the first session of the 88th Congress sometime before Monday midnight.

What is expected to be the final sitting of the session—which has lasted more than 11½ months and broken all peacetime records for length—is to start at 9 a.m. CST. The only business is the $3 billion appropriations measure to finance the foreign aid program for the current fiscal year which already is half gone.

The measure passed the House only after a prolonged and frequently bitter struggle over giving the President authority to approve government-backed credit arrangements for private sales of wheat and other U.S. goods to Soviet bloc nations.

On Record Twice
The Senate has gone on record twice in favor of granting such authority so the administration is confident of a victory which will be followed by

N.Y. Transit Men Planning Strike Jan. 1

New York (P)—Transit workers voted Sunday to strike the city subways and buses at 5 a.m. New Year's Day unless a labor contract dispute is settled before then.

Michael J. Quill, president of the Transit Workers Union, said there would be no contract unless the union wins a "breakthrough" on its demand for a four-day, 32-hour week and acceptable wage structure.

Since 1955 Quill has threatened biennially to shut down the transit lines on New Year's Day, but he's never carried out the threat.

The strike authorization by an estimated 6,000 workers came one day after Quill walked out of negotiations with the Transit Authority. The AFL-CIO union represents about 35,000 workers.

He said he would not return until the company negotiators changed its opposition to union demands for a shorter work week and a 15% wage increase.

Alliance Sets Planning Meeting On Museum

Alliance (P)—A meeting of the Alliance Museum Board with a contractor to discuss plans for a museum building has been scheduled for Thursday evening.

The board has recommended an alternate site for the location of the museum to the City Council. The location is southeast of the Highway 2 overpass.

The Council has balked at preliminary plans prepared by a Scottsbluff architect, Mayor E. Dale Novotny said the estimated $80,000 cost was impractical.

The museum board had asked the City Council to approve the preliminary plans and that construction be started in time to complete the building during 1964.

final adjournment of the session—but only until Jan. 7 when the second session will start.

However, no quick cleanup of the business at hand is anticipated. Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a persistent critic of the foreign aid program, has announced he will demand that a quorum—at least 51 of the 100 Senators—be present. In addition, he is expected to speak against the measure and others may join him.

Both Democratic and Republican Senate aides have been busy during this holiday season telegraphing and telephoning senators to assure that quorum.

Francis R. Valeo, secretary to Democratic senators, says he is confident that a quorum will be here although he will not predict just how many of the 67 Democratic senators will show up.

J. Mark Trice, veteran secretary to all Republican senators, expects more than 20 of the 33 to answer roll calls.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and his assistant, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and his deputy, Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, of California all are expected.

And as soon as the foreign aid compromise is out of the way a sine die adjournment resolution—already passed by the House—fixing Dec. 30 as the official termination date will be acted upon.

A small group of House members will meet at noon to wait formal announcement that the Senate is willing to adjourn.

Omaha Man, 40, Dies In Stabbing

Omaha (P)—A 40-year-old Omaha man, Elroy Bjorke, was found dead in his home Saturday night.

Coroner George Sullivan said he had been stabbed once through the heart.

Detective Lieutenant R. W. Rice said the man's 13-year-old stepson, William Everitt, is being held. Rice said reports to police say the boy attacked the man but added officers don't know why.

Negro Rev. King Named By Time As Man Of Year

New York (P)—The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the civil rights leader who became a symbol of the Negro revolution in 1963, has been named Man of the Year by Time magazine.

Time's editors described Dr. King in the announcement Sunday as the man who "dominated the news of that year and left an indelible mark—good or ill—on history."

The magazine said Dr. King was the first Negro to be so dedicated since Time established the tradition 37 years ago.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Holidays were made happier Sunday for Charles Chai, Korean student attending the University of Nebraska, when his sister, Coo-Wha Chai, flew to Lincoln to visit him. It was the first brother-sister reunion in eight years, and the Korean Student Association scheduled a reception in Miss Chai's honor. (Star Photo).

Nebraskans Go Around World To Find Brides

Sydney, Australia (P)—Law student Patrick Shaughnessy, 25, of St. Paul, Neb., told how he hitch-hiked across the world in U.S. Air Force planes to find the girl he loves and persuade her to change her mind.

It was in Copenhagen that Shaughnessy met school-teacher Pamela Sykes, 22, of Wollongong, New South Wales, Australia. After she left, he wrote to her twice proposing marriage, but she rejected him.

So he made his trip to Australia while he was serving in the U.S. Air Force. Pamela accepted him and Saturday they were married at St. Canice's Roman Catholic Church, Elisabeth Bay, Australia.

Said Shaughnessy: "I think

Australian girls are wonderful."

In Bangkok, Thailand, Saturday a Peace Corps volunteer from Omaha—William A. Chamberlain—wed Miss Upin Prempridi.

Mrs. William H. Chamberlain of Omaha received cabled news of her son's marriage. Both Chamberlain and his bride are teachers in the Northeast Technical Institute in Khorat, about 40 miles from Bangkok.

Chamberlain is a graduate of the University of Omaha.

Summary of Conditions

A ridge of high pressure is presently located from the northeast portion of North Dakota southeastward to the west central portion of Iowa, then southwestward to the northwest portion of the Texas panhandle. This ridge will continue drifting slowly eastward reaching Texas by Monday evening. A stationary front from the southeast portion of Colorado northward along the eastern border of the Nebraska Panhandle into north-east Montana will remain in that position for the next 24 to 36 hours.

With the ridge moving eastward and the stationary front to the west, skies over Nebraska and west Iowa will be partly cloudy to cloudy Monday. Scattered very light snow can be expected over the north central portion of Nebraska Monday and over the north and central portion of Nebraska Wednesday night. Temperatures will be slightly warmer over most of the two-state area Monday.

Crash Kills Teenager

Kimball (P)—A 16-year-old boy died early Sunday, several hours after the car he was driving was struck by a freight train.

Michael Dale McCoid was in a northbound car which was hit by a westbound train at a crossing at the east city limits of Kimball. The youth was alone.

County Attorney Tom Brower said the auto was thrown about 75 yards.

'Joke' Holdup Not So Funny

Omaha (P)—Two Boys, aged 13 and 14, were questioned by police following what the youths described as a "joke" holdup attempt at the First Westside Bank in Omaha.

Officers said the youths entered the bank and produced a note saying: "Put $1,000 in a large bag, small bills please. I have a gun."

Officers said the teller turned around to comply, and the boys walked away.

They returned a few minutes later, saying they "wanted to make sure it was a joke." Officers had been summoned and apprehended the youths.

Southeast Lincoln Pranksters Turn On Fire Hydrants

Pranksters made some city streets wet Sunday evening when they turned on 10 fire hydrants in the southeast part of Lincoln.

Police received a tip that a car, containing four or five teenagers, had been seen near one of the hydrants that was streaming water onto the street. The report said the car was driving without headlights.

Police were notified of the incidents several times, as was the Fire Department, which in turn notified the City Water Department.

The hydrants had apparently been opened with a large wrench, and the caps that had been opened were missing from some of the hydrants.

Cold But Not Cruel World

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

By this time of the year, most of the fair weather hunters have called it a season. They are the ones who like to brave the elements when it is a balmy 60 to 70 degrees but go for the warmth of the fireside when the temperatures drop to zero and below. There are a host of people who lament the cold weather and sit in their warm homes and shiver when they hear of abnormally low temperatures here and there around the country.

But many of these are merely people who have not yet learned to live with the cold weather. Take, for instance, the well-dressed hunter who takes to the field for game when the temperature reads zero. One might think that the fellow would freeze to death but quite the opposite is true. It is all a matter of being prepared. If dressed warmly enough, it is no different being out of doors in the dead of winter than sitting in your own living room. Of course, you can't cover all your face but the human face can take much more punishment than the temperature can dish out.

The human face has a way of not minding the cold. As for the rest of you, all you need is plenty of clothing. Starting at the bottom, you have heavy, insulated boots and two pair of socks. More socks would be a mistake as they would make too tight a fit of the boots and too tight a fit lends itself to cold rather than warm feet.

The boots, of course, should have a good soaking in advance in warm oil for waterproofing purposes or given some other equally effective treatment. A friend of long standing is known to warm his boots in his wife's clothes dryer and then apply the warm oil so every pore of the leather is penetrated. We are waiting for the day he forgets the boots in the dryer and melts the rubber soles therein.

Next comes the trousers and this is most important. One of the greatest inventions of all time is thermal underwear. And, in fact, it is even greater now than it used to be. Such underwear now doesn't have to be worn just as underwear but can be used on the outside as well, at least the jacket part. The clothing looks just like the quilted jackets that are so prominent these days, particularly with the younger set. You wouldn't believe thermal clothing can do what it does but it is truly amazing. Last year, a fellow wore some under his street clothes to a late season football game when it was bitter cold. He became so warm sitting in the stands, he wanted to remove his topcoat but, of course, would have appeared to everyone else to be ridiculous had he done so.

Formidable Problem

The United States Office of Education forecast that 596,300 young men and women will receive college degrees next June.

We'll buy that. It sounds about right. The office went on to forecast that 10 years hence, in 1974, one million young men and women will receive degrees.

That flabbergasts us. That means that our institutions of higher learning will almost double in size in 10 years.

When we consider that it took us more than 300 years to reach the 596,300 annual output, we've got to do almost as much more in one thirtieth of the time. It is a dramatic example of the tasks the country faces in any number of fields.

The physical and economic problems of preparing material accommodations for such an increase in graduates are staggering ones. But it only reminds that the necessitous change in education is much more formidable.

Case For Study

America takes deep satisfaction over its trait of spontaneous generosity in instances of individual need.

It would be impossible to arrive at a total of personal giving, alleviating human distress. No record is kept. But it is known that in three touching instances voluntary giving has amounted to more than $500,000.

The J. D. Tippet family was the largest beneficiary following the murder of the Dallas police officer after the assassination of the President. Money cannot substitute for the presence and companionship of a devoted husband and father. But the widow Tippet and her children now have a backlog of $386,203 which means economic security.

A fund of $118,600 has been raised for the children of the 129 service men who went down last April when the submarine

A pair of thermal trousers with something warm under them and a pair of hunting pants over them will keep you toasty when the temperature falls well below zero. On the upper half, the thermal shirt does the same thing, when used with something under it and something over it. When so attired, you take on the appearance of a large gorilla but there is something to be said for that. Part of the reason people can't stand the cold is that they are too concerned over their appearance and will not bundle up as the situation calls for. One of the beautiful things about hunting is that you are expected to look the part—which isn't very good. It is sort of like the fishing trip when you let the whiskers grow long, razor blade ads to the contrary.

Gloves for the hands are somewhat of a problem but not too much. You can't use two pairs of gloves too well as it hampers you in loading your weapon and getting your finger inside the trigger guard. But one pair will do the job if they are big enough to help cover the wrists. A little moving and rubbing of the hands will then keep them warm.

The head and ears are the final problem but they are really no problem at all. They, too, are tough and can take a lot of cold without your even knowing it. Any reasonable warm covering of them will do the trick with no discomfort to you throughout the day. If you end up with any ill effects at all, it is chapped lips and that is easily taken care of.

Thus, you can beat the cold if you want to and then will not become stale by spending the whole winter indoors. The most a lot of people ever see of winter is what they see from their picture window or in pictures. But life in the animal world goes on just as relentlessly in the winter as any other time of year. The field mice, the pheasants, the meadow larks, the rabbits, the hawks, the deer and all the other creatures of nature take winter in their stride and are amazingly adept in dealing with it. They burrow under the snow for warmth, can find food and water with amazing insight and can hide when the snow covering should, but doesn't, make them stand out like a sore thumb.

And finally, there is the scenery of winter which is breathtaking. With its cleared sidewalks, streets and driveways, no city can offer the winter view that is found in the open country when the only thing left uncovered is that which nature herself has blown clean. The winter really boils down to whatever you want to get out of it.

For 300 years we have been coasting along with traditional education, relying on the laws of Newton and Descartes in physics and on social subjects nestled largely in the nest of the classicists. But a few years ago most of that collapsed in the wake of profound scientific discoveries and new social factors.

Perforce education can no longer be traditional if it is to be useful. Building twice as many buildings for more of the same isn't going to work.

Our sympathy goes out to the professional educators. They've got the big mandate and not much precedent. Lots of our education has become as obsolete as the bow and arrow. But what do we throw away and with what should it be replaced? Aye, there is the big question, especially when it is considered that we cannot afford to make a mistake.

Thresher sank. This is another instance in which Americans consider they are their brother's keeper.

The least has been provided for the widow of Lee Harvey Oswald and her two daughters, one 2 months the other 2 years. A fund of $23,000 awaits their needs.

Good Americans are doing a little soul searching in the Oswald case. They would like to know more about this unfortunate little family. Mrs. Oswald is a Russian girl living in a strange land where she says she wishes to remain despite the language barrier and the strangeness of the country.

The family labors under a dark stigma. For that alone life will be difficult albeit such evidence we have does not sully the innocence of the surviving family. In certain circumstances they are the most needy of all.

at what could be done with what was on hand to do with it.

When we look at need and ignore availability of funds, we come up with a deficit of $18,190,000. The small increase in the wheel tax, from $4 to $6 for passenger cars, will cut that deficit by about $1,300,000.

Obviously, Lincoln is going to be hard put to make the street improvements that will be needed over the next 10 years. In fact, it is doubtful that a realistic solution to the problem can be drafted. Federal funds will be short by nearly $7 million over the next 10 years and the city will show a shortage of about $10 million.

The federal shortage will come on projects which are eligible for federal aid but for which no such aid is available. Thus, either federal aid must be expanded, a doubtful proposition, or the city must put up the funds itself. In the case of the latter, this would mean Lincoln coming up with some $17 million in 10 years.

To produce this kind of money, Lincoln would have to come up with a property tax levy, for instance, of between 9 and 10 mills, or a wheel tax about five times what it is now. Neither of these two things is in the cards.

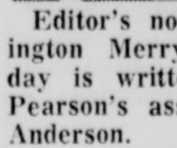

It is apparent that the city simply isn't going to meet all needs in the next 10 years. It is also apparent that we are in that metropolitan class of cities where public burdens are overwhelming. Lincoln's future is brilliant but loaded with complexities and responsibilities.

Base Reduction Brings Protests

Editor's note: The Washington Merry-Go-Round today is written by Drew Pearson's associate, Jack Anderson.

WASHINGTON—The congressional clamor against closing more military bases, like a French fish market in full cry, hasn't died down a decibel.

The loudest squawks, ironically, are coming from champions of economy who are against federal spending everywhere except in their own backyards.

Some of the bases should have been shut down 100 years ago. But the generals who command them have held off the taxpayers more savagely than they once fought off the Indians who attacked those same forts.

Here are some of the aged bases which Johnson wants to close:

Ft. Totten on Long Island, N.Y., was first used as a recruit depot during the Revolutionary War. It stood against the Indians and the French, fell once to the British. But not until President Johnson's determined attack on waste were the taxpayers to defeat it.

Most facilities at Ft. Totten, including the gun placements, date back to 1868. The buildings are old, inadequate, costly to maintain, expensive to heat.

The Port Washington, N.Y. Naval Training Device Center is actually located in a medieval castle, its functions scattered among guest houses, stables, and servants quarters. Indeed, some functions are located as far away as Mechanicsburg, Pa., Mineola, N.Y., and Garden City, N.Y.

The castle, though of ancient vintage, was built in more modern times by the late railroad tycoon, George Gould. It is as expensive and impractical to maintain, however, as if it had been built for King Arthur's round table.

Result: President Johnson has ordered the Navy to move out of this museum and consolidate its training device activities at nearby Mitchell Air Force Base.

Ft. Slocum, N.Y.—Another military relic in the same area, was finally closed by the late President Kennedy earlier this year. Located on David's island in Long Island Sound, it may have been ideal for holding off British sloops. But in its modern role as an Army school, it was not only obsolete but out of the way. The Army was obliged to operate a full-time ferry to haul 450 military men and civilian workers back and forth.

Camp Gary, south of Austin, Tex., not far from the LBJ ranch, is supposed to be used to train army pilots in case of emergency. But the air traffic over Austin is so heavy that it is no place for student pilots. As a result, Camp Gary not only has no peacetime mission but couldn't even be used for its wartime mission. Yet Judge Thornberry, before he left Congress recently, was crying to keep the camp open.

New Year's Whoopee Really Covers Pensive Feelings

NEW YORK—Jason Roberts, Jr., once told us he liked to spend New Year's eve walking alone—because that way, he could study the faces of people off-guard. "And people with their hair down are the greatest show in the world."

Cary Grant says he always spends New Year's eve "meditating on all that's happened since last New Year's eve—promising myself to try and not make the same mistakes next year."

Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy call Dec. 31 "inventory night." They count their blessings and telephone all their friends to wish them health and happiness.

Anne Bancroft makes it a habit to visit her parents in the Bronx on New Year's eve and "stuff myself with about a million calories of the best Italian cooking in the world."

Walter Slezak proclaims the occasion a "joyous" time, and turns on the television annually to "watch the swarming idiots in Times Square."

And Shirley Jones, when ever possible, "mingles with the happy people in Times Square," idiots or not.

These people, all actors who don't mind at all being quoted, claim to find New Year's eve a stimulating, gratifying period in the year.

Other, less-actory friends, who have nothing to gain from being quoted, consider New Year's eve one of the grimmest nights of the year... a time when you either A) over-drink, or B) over-er-think.

"The worst part about it is the pressure on you to look like you're having a good time. Nobody ever had a good time by working at it," says a housewife who, in spite of her attitude, always holds a small open house. Asked why (she has the open house), she replies, "because we don't like to go out, and it's too depressing to be alone."

This ambivalent position—hating to go "on the town" but dreading also a pensive evening at home—is shared by many people. It is known as "break-the-bank or break-your-heart" syndrome.

"The last time we went out dining and dancing in a hotel, it cost us $110 and we didn't enjoy it," reports a friend. "Since then we stay home and drink champagne. It costs us $6 and we still don't enjoy it. But it's cheap misery."

Why New Year's eve is such a reflective night for sensitive people is obvious: It is a finish, officially, of another segment of one's personal, national, international dealings. A summing-up time for accomplishments, with deductions for set-backs and unrealized ideals. No year can ever be reviewed without its sadnesses, its regrets, its frustrations and disappointments. And this year, capped so recently by the most appalling tragedy, is particularly regrettable.

To put it in the mood of the once-funny Kennedy coloring books: color 1964 black.

Friend of ours from California summed up the feelings of millions, possibly, when he sent a card which read: "In spite of everything—have a happy new year!"

GUSTAV KIRCHHOFF

Profiles In Science

The analysis of light has been an important concern of science for centuries.

Newton showed that white light is made up of all the colors of the rainbow and that the many colors are each made up of light from which the other colors have been absorbed.

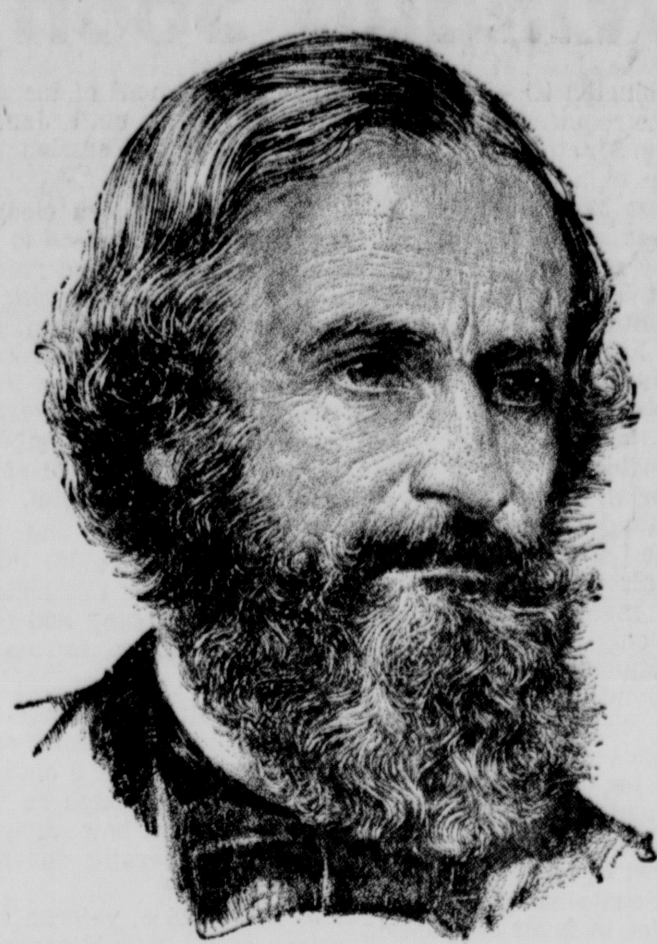

A red pencil, for example, is red because the other colors in the light have been absorbed by the pigmentation of the paint on the pencil.

A Dutch physicist, Huygens, was among the first to assume that light was emitted from its source in waves, or pulsations, a theory later extended to all forms of radiated energy such as heat and radioactivity.

Gustav Kirchhoff (1824-1887), successively professor of physics at the Universities of Breslau, Heidelberg and Berlin, made an immense contribution to modern science's knowledge of light and other forms of energy that are emitted in waves.

He showed that analysis of these waves reveals the chemical make-up and temperature of the source of the energy.

Although he made important scientific contributions in other fields, such as proving the speed with which electrical energy travels in a conductor, how light is refracted by crystalline objects and the heat conductivity of iron, he is best known today for his research in spectroscopy. The word comes from spectrum, the Latin word for image that is used to describe the arrangement of colors in light and other kinds of radiant energy.

Most of Kirchhoff's experiments with light were done with Von Bunsen, a German scientist who in 1856 invented the Bunsen burner, the most familiar object in every chemistry classroom and lab. If a student looks through a prism at a piece of iron or other element held in the flame of the burner, he will see the succession of colors, ranging from red to violet, that is the spectrum of that element.

Under closer analysis, the spectrum will also show a series of black vertical lines. Because each element has a different arrangement of these lines, they have been called the "fingerprints" of the elements.

Kirchhoff said that the colors and black lines of a spectrum are the visible signs of how much light is absorbed by the object under examination; that light and heat are associated in spectrum analysis.

Thus, in studying the spectrum of iron or other heavenly bodies, astronomers can determine of what they are made. They do this by identifying the "fingerprints."

Kirchhoff was the first to make a coherent, complete account of the theories of spectrum analysis, giving spectroscopy a solid basis for future development.

See Khrushchev In 1964 Power Re-bid

Crystal-ball gazers at UN see 1964 as the year in which Premier Nikita Khrushchev will strive by diplomatic gymnastics and maneuvers to recover from severe blows to his leadership. He was clearly hurt by the disastrous harvest and consequent food shortages in his country, and the crack in the firmly monolithic communist world under Moscow control stemming from the Sino-Soviet dispute.

In 1962 Khrushchev tried to turn the world balance of power in his favor by implanting Soviet nuclear missiles in Cuba 90 miles from American shores, and failed. In 1963, partly in consequence of the Cuban failure and his retreat when the late President Kennedy called his bluff, Khrushchev perforce stayed on the defensive. In 1964, as forecasts see it at UN, he will try for a come-back by testing the leadership and mettle of President Johnson both by acts of masked friendship ofers — including if possible a personal meeting — and by turning on the heat in Berlin or wherever he figures the United States is in a disadvantageous position to counteract him.

But those who from long personal diplomatic service in Moscow know the Kremlin mind and that of Khrushchev are convinced that in 1964 he will avoid any eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation with the United States and most likely will limit his bids for renewed recognition as the dominant leader of the communist world to strategies and maneuvers which might precipitate a crisis between East and West, but not include the risk of a nuclear war.

In the eyes of UN experts, Mao Tse-tung and his Peiping warlords will have to be watched much more closely in 1964 than they have been by the non-communist world. Predictions among international experts are that not only the Sino-Soviet dispute but the sinister war goals of the Mao crowd will jolt peace, and one way or another tilt the course of history back and forth.

On the overall picture of Khrushchev and the Soviet Union, none of the diplomatic experts questioned by this correspondent believe that the Kremlin is thinking of moving away by even a hair from the sworn goal of communist domination of the world. They point out that the only point of dispute between Khrushchev and Mao is on achieving the goal. Peiping insists on sticking to the original communist policy of force; Moscow wants to avoid nuclear war and hopes to gain its ends better by worldwide subversive methods, by the hoax of "peaceful co-existence" and by luring the western powers through a wearing-down process into disarmament on communist terms.

A few key diplomats made the observation that both Mao and Khrushchev are pushing 70 years, and could conceivably disappear from the political scene in 1964. The question they posed is whether the disappearance of one or both will open the way for rapprochement between the revamped leadership in Peiping and Moscow. They point out, too, that in any case the original ring-leaders of communism in both capitals are reaching upper age levels. What nobody is willing to predict is whether the new blood in Peiping and Moscow would rejoin in a policy of force to gain communist world objectives or follow the road of underground conspiracies and seductive propaganda.

Naturally, the whole 1964 political picture is backgrounded by the American scene, and therewith by President Johnson and the power of his world leadership. For that reason, the 1964 presidential election again intrudes on all international thinking, and brings imponderables that will play a large role in the ebb and flow of global affairs.

Few buy the prediction that 1964 will see an end to the cold war, as East-West leaders have pledged, but takers are even less for bets that the U.S. and Soviet Union will reach basic agreements on such issues as Berlin and disarmament in the year ahead.

Well, we'll just have to live with our world as it is. A happy New Year to all.

Sunday Ceremony

At an afternoon ceremony solemnized on Sunday, Dec. 29, Miss Judy Ann Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Johnson of Kimball, became the bride of Charles Edwin Mays, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mays of Lincoln. The Rev. Richard Dinsdale read the lines of the 3 o'clock service at Trinity Methodist Church in Kimball, and Mrs. Robert Ransom, organist, played the wedding music. The vocal soloist was Miss Carole Peterson of Lincoln.

Miss Marian Johnson of Kimball, as her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss K. C. Christiansen of Ogallala, and Miss Mary Jo Mays, Lincoln, sister of the bridegroom, wore identical frocks of silk satin in shades of petal pink, vibrant pink and cranberry. They carried bouquets of pompons in the azalea pink tone.

Serving as best man was Dr. Gary Batt of Lincoln, and seating the guests were Dr. Dave Frederick and Lon Sorensen, Lincoln; Jim Flohr, Kimball; Bill Smith, Fruitland, Idaho; and Dr. Robert Hyland, Scottsbluff.

Traditional white satin fashioned the bride's princess gown. Floral appliques of French lace, traced with seed pearls, patterned the front of the sculptured bodice which was designed with a rounded décolletage and elbow sleeves, and the applique motif was repeated on the circular skirt which was caught into back fullness and extended into a chapel train. A crown of iridescent sequins and pearls held her shoulder veil of illusion, and she carried an arrangement of white Fuji chrysanthemums.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Mays will reside at 1735 C. A student at the University of Nebraska, the bride is a member of Alpha Chi Omega and Pi Lambda Theta honorary. Mr. Mays, a member of Zeta Psi fraternity at Nebraska Wesleyan University, is studying for his Masters degree at the University of Nebraska.

Set up a sun lamp in the living room, sprinkle a little sand on the carpet, and sit down by the TV set with a big bowl of assorted citrus fruits.

Many people are planning to have guests in to watch the game, just as many people have been having guests during the entire holiday season. In the role of recent guests were Mr. and Mrs. Orville Hewitt, who left last Tuesday for the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr.

Wedding In Florida

Miss Susan Abigail Dunham Stanley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adon Wilber Adams of Auburndale, Fla., formerly of Lincoln, became the bride of Anthony William Wolk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Wolk of Pittsburgh, Pa., on Sunday, Dec. 29. The 7:30 o'clock service was solemnized by the Rev. David Brown at the Unitarian Church in Orlando, Fla., in the presence of members of the family and a small group of friends.

The maid of honor and her sister's only attendant was Ens. Barbara Joan Stanley, WAVES, of Alexandria, Va., who wore an afternoon frock of wool in the Wedgwood blue shade. She completed her costume with a short mantilla of blue lace, and carried a nosegay of pink and white rosebuds.

Set up a sun lamp in the living room, sprinkle a little sand on the carpet, and sit down by the TV set with a big bowl of assorted citrus fruits. Many people are planning to have guests in to watch the game, just as many people have been having guests during the entire holiday season.

In the role of recent guests were Mr. and Mrs. Orville Hewitt, who left last Tuesday for the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr.

brother as best man. For her wedding, the bride chose a sheath of white wool mohair. The sleeveless bodice was designed with a high, rounded neckline, and the slim skirt was daytime length. She wore a mantilla veil of imported French lace, and carried a rounded bouquet of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolk will make their home in Lincoln at 1730 Ryons. The bride is a senior at the University of Nebraska, where Mr. Wolk, an instructor in the English department, is studying for his doctorate. He is a graduate of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., where he also received his Masters degree.

DEAR ABBY: Can you explain the idiocy in people who own toy poodles? My sister was given one and she has become positively insufferable. She calls this dog, "My baby boy!" She kisses it and spends half a day combing and brushing him. She has a sweet granddaughter who is three years old, and naturally when the little girl wants to get on her grandmother's lap and the poodle is there, she resents it. The child gets no comfort at all. My sister takes the dog for a ride and leaves the grandchild standing on the sidewalk in tears. I have stopped going over there because of her disgusting behavior. What could be the matter with a grown woman who acts like this?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: One hasty curbstone analysis is as good as another. Your sister could be using the dog to punish the child because grandma probably wanted a grandson and she got a granddaughter. The dog is a male, and grandma has transferred all her affection to the dog. Or maybe grandma just likes poodles.

DEAR ABBY: I am five going on six and my mother told me I should write to you and ask this question: Is there a Santa Claus? Love, HEIDI

DEAR HEIDI: You bet there is. He's the man who buys your shoes, pays the rent and kisses your mother. Love, DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily and Mrs. Edward Shurigar and their five daughters, Cindy, Janice, Barbara, Patty, and Molly Bee, in Kene-saw.

Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt returned home Friday evening. Christmas dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hevelone were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hevelone of Imperial.

Visitors throughout the day included their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Wittstruck and their children, Chuck, Susie, and Donray, of Roca; Mr. and Mrs. George Longdale of Council Bluffs, Ia.; and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gordon of Le Mars, Ia.

Special treat for Mr. and Mrs. Hevelone was a certain long distance call from their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hevelone of Lexington Park, Md.

Arriving this weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lococo and their son, Tommy, were Mrs. Lococo's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Groothuis and their children, Mike, Neal, and Ellen, of Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The Groothuis family will be leaving for home after New Year's Day.

A birthday and Christmas were celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kushner and their children, Martin, Matt, and Renay during the holidays.

Honoree on Christmas Day at the home of Mr. Kushner's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Kushner, was Mr. Kushner's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Kushner, whose birthday was also Dec. 25.

Out-of-town guests enjoying the twin fare of turkey and birthday cake were Mr. Kushner's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Kushner and their children, Karen and Jill, of Omaha.

KIMBERLY HEIGHTS

Kimberly Heights residents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Kirk, had as Christmas guests their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kelly of Houston, Tex.

Mr. Kelly attends Baylor University, where he is a second year student in the Medical School. He and his wife left for Grand Island Christmas Day, but will be returning to Lincoln after New Year's for a brief visit on their way home.

Horizon Club
The members of the Lincoln Camp Fire Girls Horizon Club will entertain at a holiday party on Saturday evening, Jan. 4. The party will be held at the YWCA, and will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

At a 4:30 o'clock ceremony on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29, the marriage of Miss Muriel Nielsen of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merl Nielsen of Minden, to Gary Thompson, also of Lincoln and the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Grover Thompson of Tulsa, Okla., took place at the First Christian Church in Minden. The bridegroom's father, assisted by the Rev. Richard Waldron, solemnized the service, and the wedding music was played by Miss Roberta Schmidt of Omaha. Steven Roberts of Lincoln was the vocal soloist.

Wearing alike bell-shaped frocks of red velvet the attendants were Miss Mary Helen Bucknell, the maid of honor, and bridesmaid Mrs. Gail Cane of Downer's Grove, Ill., sister of the bridegroom. Miss Joan Nielsen was her sister's junior bridesmaid. Each of the attendants carried a single white rose.

Alfred Thompson of Lincoln served his brother as best man, and the ushers included Ron Krahmer and Charles Peek, both of Lincoln.

The bride appeared in a gown of peau de soie in the candlelight shade, and Alencon lace. The lace fashioned the long-sleeved sculptured bodice, designed with a scalloped sabrina neckline, and was repeated in applique on the wide skirt that extended into a chapel train. A pillbox hat of lace, dotted with pearls, held in place her tiered, waist-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Upon their return from a honeymoon trip Mr. Thompson and his bride will reside at 218 So. 18th St.

The bride attended Hastings College and was graduated from the Lincoln School of Commerce. Mr. Thompson is a former student at the University of Nebraska where he is a member of Acacia fraternity.

Following a honeymoon trip, the couple will reside in Lincoln. A former student at Cottey College, Nevada, Mo., the bride is a senior at the University of Nebraska and a member of Chi Omega and Sigma Alpha Iota music sorority. Mr. Gerlach is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

White, delustered satin was chosen for the bride's gown which was designed in the Empire mode. The long-sleeved bodice was fashioned with a bateau neckline and appliqued with imported lace, and a wide band of the silk marked the slim waist beneath which the bell-shaped skirt was draped into back fullness extending into aisle-wide train. Her bouffant veil of illusion was held to the head by a circlet of peau de soie roses and pearls, and she carried a cascade of white roses, feathered chrysanthemums and gold tinsel balls tufted with gold malines.

Berlin Wall Scene Of Big Traffic Jam

By LOYAL GOULD

Berlin (AP)—Nearly 155,000 West Berliners returning from family outings in the Communist sector of the divided city caused immense traffic jams Sunday night.

Nothing like it had been seen in post-war East Berlin as masses of people and about 17,000 automobiles converged on the five temporary holes in the wall that have served as entry and exit points. There has been some talk of keeping the wall open beyond the Jan. 5 deadline.

The official East German news agency ADN said there were 154,621 visitors in the biggest day since the holiday visits program began Dec. 20.

The busy day — more than doubling Saturday's previous high of 69,000 persons — brought the total of visitors so far to 412,800, ADN said.

Holiday Mood

East Berlin police, back in a holiday mood, were prepared for the big tide of humanity as the West Berliners obediently headed back for home by the midnight deadline.

Heeding warnings from guards of possible jams, about one-third had crossed back into West Berlin by 10 p.m. (4 p.m. EST Sunday).

But most waited until the last hour when by Red orders they had to tear themselves away from their loved ones and resume their separate lives, divided again by the wall.

Both sides of the road were used so as to speed westward auto columns. But there were lines of vehicles three to five miles long, both on the west side going in on Sunday and on the east side coming out again.

"This is quite an automobile show for them (the Communists) and I wonder what they think if they think at all," said one West Berlin policeman.

Crews Beefed Up

The pressure of processing the visitors was so great, that crews of both East and West Berlin customs officials were beefed up.

So many were on duty at some crossovers that East and West officials were standing toe to toe checking passes.

This is the first time they have come so close since the wall was built 28 months ago. They usually stay 30 feet away from each other when processing people passing between the two halves of the city.

The Reds re-installed the holiday atmosphere which had disappeared with the Christmas Day killing on the wall of a fleeing East German youth.

Officials in both West and East Berlin have announced willingness to discuss possibilities of extending the Communist-granted holiday concession beyond its expiration date. But how this can be done without making dangerous concessions to the Reds was an open question.

The three Western allies — the British, French and Americans — have no objections to such talks but they want to give their stamp of approval to any moves West Berlin may want to make.

CARMICHAEL

1 Yank Killed, 7 Hurt In Viet Nam Flights

Saigon, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Helicopter flights over Communist Viet Cong positions in the Mekong Delta resulted in the death of one American officer and the wounding of seven other U.S. Army men, a military spokesman said Sunday.

The casualties occurred Saturday in three separate operations.

The officer, killed by Communist ground fire as he was flying a HU1B helicopter, was the 17th American to die since Dec. 1 in combat with the Viet Cong. Three other Americans were listed as missing and presumed killed so far in December to make it the worst single month for American deaths since the beginning of the war.

162 Dead So Far

All told, 162 Americans have died in combat here since 1961 when the United States first took an active role in the war against the guerrilla bands from Communist North Viet Nam.

The 'copter pilot, a first lieutenant, was struck in the head by a single Communist bullet as the craft was on an escort mission over Kien Hoa Province, 55 miles south of Saigon.

Four of the seven wounded were hit during an "Eagle Flight" assault against the Viet Cong in Long An province just south of the Capital. None was seriously hurt.

The other three wounded men were on an assault operation in the southern part of the Mekong Delta. All returned to duty after treatment of their wounds.

In a government announcement not directly related to the war, the ruling military junta said it would not attend the proposed international conference to guarantee the neutrality of Cambodia.

"Would Be Exploited"

A foreign ministry communique said such a conference would only be exploited by the Communists and would not accomplish its declared objective.

Cebu City—"The Queen City of the Philippines"—is somewhat toward the middle of the Philippines' 7000 islands.

The first tourist was Ferdinand Magellan, known to history as the first circumnavigator of the world.

On April 25, 1521, Ferdinand arrived at nearby Mactan island.

Said he to the assembled natives: "Boys, good news!"

Magellan then explained how Spain handled new, foreign real estate development. ("We own the real estate. And you develop it.")

This so amazed a chief named Lapu-lapu that he stuck the discoverer with a sharp spear.

The captain hardly had time to say "ouch" before he became a semi-circumnavigator. He stayed forever and is buried at Cebu City.

The Philippines named a fish after Lapu-lapu. You find it on the menu at the Chinese restaurant called "White Gold."

"Sir, a sari-sari store is a grocery store. They sell everything — you know. Like flour. And tobacco. And food and cloth and pots and dried squid."

The shy girl behind the cashier counter came over.

She said: "Excuse me, sir, but first you must understand the word. Sari-sari is found often in the Bible in Tagalog. It coincides with your word 'conglomeration.'"

"You see, sir, many people in the provinces live a hand-to-mouth existence. They work for a few pesos a day in the field. They are paid daily."

"When they get a peso, they go to the sari-sari store. They get a couple of centavos worth of flour. A three-centavo piece of lard. Maybe some dried fish. Some soap."

"Then they are broke until tomorrow. When they are paid again."

There are two or three sari-sari stores for each neighborhood. Open air, snack-like places with your credit account on the wall—written down for everybody to see.

They have names that please the owner: "Happy Days Sari-sari Store."

Attorneys Split On Oswald Coverage

New York (AP)—Four attorneys disagreed Sunday on whether news media exceeded proper bounds in coverage of the arrest, questioning and slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

The panelists on the CBS show, "Lee Oswald and the Law," took these views:

Newton Minor, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission — Because of the unusual nature of the crime, and the danger of the spread of rumors, the news media had an obligation to report "whatever they could find out."

Percy Foreman, Texas defense attorney — The "overweening publicity from every source" would have made it impossible for Oswald to have received a fair trial.

Bound By Oaths

Leon Douglas, prosecuting attorney before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals — Despite the publicity, "jurors are bound by their oath," and Oswald could have received a fair trial.

Prof. Paul Freund of Harvard Law School — It is doubtful if a fair trial was possible, partly because "we don't know how much momentum this publicity would have acquired had Oswald lived." But it was "overstepping the line" for evidence to be "ticked off as if the television were itself the courtroom."

"We lawyers," said Minor, "tend to blame the press, but really it takes two to tango. It's the lawyers and the law-enforcement people who gave out this information to the press."

Central Authority

Prof. Freund said he wasn't trying to assess the blame, and felt it would have been better if information to the press had been channeled through "some centralized authority."

Minor said "television has changed everything in the world." He said the courts have not adjusted to the fact that with TV "the whole nation is really the jury in many ways."

Calling for a new "set of standards" for coverage of courts by all news media, Minor said:

"As it is now, the worst competitor in the news business sets the standard. The fellow who has the least amount of respect for integrity or self-discipline or self-restraint is the one who sets the norm, because all the others are degraded down to his level."

Inevitable

Minor said he would rather have television report all it could find out about a presidential assassination, and that he believes such a response is inevitable.

NU Thinclads In Relay Event

... 4 WORLD CHAMPS MEET

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Miami Fla. — Nebraska's mile relay team will be in a field of six competing for the title in the eight-furlong baton-passing event here Monday night in the first Orange Bowl Invitational Track and Field Meet.

The meet, which gets under way at 7:30 p.m. at the University of Miami track, includes four world record holders in the field of 56 athletes from 14 schools.

Record Holders

World record holders who will be performing here are John Pennel (pole vault), Gary Gubner (shot put), Dave Styron (60-yard dash), and Bob Hayes (100-yard dash).

The Cornhusker mile relay quartet of Gil Gebo, Tucker Lillis, Dave Crook and Dick Strand will be competing against three other groups that have been timed in 3:16 or less.

Furman, winner of the Penn Relays' mile relay last spring, has been timed in 3:12, topping a list that includes top times from Grambling, Florida State and Nebraska.

Florida State has its best mile relay team in history and has recorded a 3:14. Grambling's best is 3:16 and the Huskers can be expected to turn the course in about 3:15.

Workouts Limited

The Husker's Gebo is also entered in the open 440, but NU coach Frank Sevigne indicated Sunday that he may scratch his top quarter-miler from that event. The NU runners' workouts have been limited to the indoor track at Lincoln and Sevine feels Gebo may not be ready to give a top effort in both events.

Gubner, the world's shot put record-holder with a toss of 63-8½, can expect his chief competition from Al Williams, a Florida State junior who has been tossing the 16-pound ball near the 60-foot mark.

Pennel, who set the world's pole vault record on the University of Miami track at 17 feet, ¾ inches last August, isn't likely to have any serious challengers in his specialty.

But this is the way the Northeast Louisiana State College student prefers it. "I would just as soon be vaulting by myself," he says.

The 100-yard dash could be the top attraction of the meet with two world record holders racing.

Hayes has run the century in 9.1 and Styron holds the 60-yard dash mark with a 5.9 clocking.

If Sevigne does decide to race Gebo in the open 440, he will be running against Styron, who has a 46.0 clocking for the quarter-mile. Other top quarter-milers entered are Pete Rowe (47.3) of Florida, Eddie West (47.5) of Furman and Jim Brown (47.5) of Florida.

The meet includes athletes from Nebraska, Miami, Florida, Florida State, Florida A & M, Furman, Grambling, New York University, Northeast Louisiana State, Harvard, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Houston, and Auburn.

...Papa Bear's Men Cop 6th Playoff, 14-10

Chicago (AP) — Chicago's sticky-fingered defense intercepted five of Y. A. Tittle's passes and won the National Football League championship for George Halas, their 68-year-old pioneer owner-coach, on a 14-10 triumph Sunday over the New York Giants.

Bill Wade, who directed the Bears' attack, scored both Chicago touchdowns on quarterback sneaks from the two and the one after interceptions by Larry Morris and Ed O'Bradovich set them up.

Tittle, hobbling on a damaged left knee after he was hurt midway in the second period, threw a 14-yard TD pass to Frank Gifford early in the first period after Erich Barnes recovered a fumble by Wade.

Don Chandler's 13-yard field goal in the second period gave the Giants a 10-7 lead that they nursed into the final minutes of the third quarter despite a savage onslaught by the Bear defenders.

Tittle Sidelined

Young Glynn Griffing, the Giants' rookie quarterback, had to play the last half of the second period while 38-year-old Tittle went to the clubhouse for repairs. Y. A. came back for the second half but was harried by those aroused Bear ballhawks.

Still to the very end Tittle was in there pitching, threatening to take it all. The Giants had moved to the Bears' 38 with 10 seconds to go when Richie Petitbon stole Tittle's bomb in the end zone for the fifth interception. Y. A. threw his helmet on the frozen turf, exposing his bald pate, and kicked the ground in disgust.

Larry Morris, who intercepted a pass and made life miserable for Tittle and the Giant backs all through the frigid eight-degree afternoon, was picked as the most valuable player in the game for a brilliant job at his right corner linebacker post.

It was the first title for Halas and the Bears since 1946, ending a long string of 17 cold and hungry years. The triumph was particularly heart-warming to Papa Bear, who has been a bulwark of pro football since 1920.

Eighth Title

The Bears won their eighth league championship, tying the Green Bay Packers in that department. Two came in the days before they held conference playoffs so this victory was their sixth championship game, a record.

The triumph came 30 years after the Bears won their first playoff game in this same Wrigley Field by beating the same opponent, New York, 23-21.

The Giants now have lost 11 of 14 title games, never having won on the road in seven attempts.

Tittle, the premier passer in the league and the most valuable player in regular season play, completed only 11 of 29, far below his season mark of 60.2 percentage. He threw for 151 yards, one TD and had five intercepted.

Wade, who went to the bomb on occasion in a switch from his usual ball-control methods, completed 10 of 28 for 138 yards and no scores.

Giants Score

Tittle cashed in on Wade's fumble, recovered by Barnes, and hit Frank Gifford with a 14-yard scoring toss

—COACH PRAISES DEFENSE—

Halas Leads Cheering As Bears Whoop It Up

Chicago (AP)—The Chicago Bears whooped it up in their victorious dressing room where owner — Coach George Halas announced the 14-10 pulsating triumph over the New York Giants was "my biggest personal satisfaction."

But it was the great Bear defense which took most of the credit, and the game ball of the 1963 National Football League championship went to defensive coach George Allen.

Everyone agreed that it was the interceptions by Larry Morris and Ed O'Bradovich which set up the two touchdowns and gave the Bears their first title since 1946.

"We started the season with the No. 1 defense and we ended it with the No. 1 defense," laughed Halas, who personally led the cheers in the noisy dressing room.

Anticipated

Morris, the most valuable Bear on the field this cold, brisk day admitted that the Bears had anticipated the Giant attack.

"We know they like to throw the screen on the second down and I guess I smelled it," he said in reference to his 61-yard run with an interception which set up the Bears' first touchdown. "I'm no halfback, but I was trying to go all the way because I was scared of being hit."

But it was O'Bradovich's interception of a screen pass in the third quarter which set up the winning score. "I caught it with one hand," screamed the big defensive end. "Reminded me of the days when I used to grab those passes at Illinois."

It was great, just great."

Invites From Ditka

Mike Ditka, who caught the clutch pass after O'Bradovich's interception on a third down and nine situation to give Bill Wade the chance to bowl into the end zone, ran around inviting everyone to his spacious bowling alley-restaurant.

"Everything, and I mean everything, is on the house," said the All-League end.

Halas, the 68-year-old pioneer who carved his empire in the NFL, was mum about the possibility of retiring.

"Well, we have to think about the Pro Bowl game right now," said Halas. And then after some thought, he added, "There's not much danger of my retiring at the present."

NY Offers No Alibis

Chicago (AP)—There was a heavy air of dejection and frustration in the Giants dressing room following their third National Football League defeat in as many years, but there were no alibis.

Quarterback Y. A. Tittle sat staring at the floor rubbing a swollen left knee that had forced him out of the game after 8 minutes, 30 seconds of the second period.

Tittle returned in the second half but said, "I just couldn't get back fast enough to get set."

He said he first injured the knee early in the first quarter when he went down after throwing a touchdown pass to halfback Frank Gifford.

"Then I got hit from the side just after I threw that pass in the second period," he said.

Giant Coach Allie Sherman repeated over and over, "We have no alibis. The Bears played a good game and you have to give them the win."

"I can't say enough for my boys and anybody who says Tittle can't win the big ones just doesn't know football."

"He's played and won more big games in the last three years than anyone. And he went out and played the second half today when very few men would have played."

Sherman then ticked off a list of four Giant players hurt during the game. Tittle, linebacker Tom Scott, who suffered a broken arm; halfback Phil King an injured ankle, and guard Bookie Bolin, who suffered a slight concussion.

Tittle said it was the same leg he injured three years ago in Baltimore but that it hadn't given him any trouble since then. As if to minimize the extent of the injury, Tittle commented, "I'll play next year."

"The Bears had a real good pass rush," Tittle said, "but the problem was I just couldn't run. I couldn't get back there fast enough to get set and I had to hurry too much."

Linebacker Sam Huff sat in a corner taping his knees, both of which were lacerated and raw.

"What can you say," commented Huff. "You saw the game. They scored 14 points and they're the world champions."

Chicago (AP)—Each Chicago Bear probably will receive about $6,000 and each losing New York Giant about $4,200 from the receipts of Sunday's National Football League title game at Wrigley Field.

The paid attendance of 45,801 contributed to a gross gate that probably will hit close to $500,000. No financial figures were announced because there was no immediate check on the closed circuit television receipts at three arenas in Chicago.

INTERCEPTION . . . by Bears' Petitbon (17) puts game on ice. Other back is J. C. Caroline (25).

at 7:22 of the first period. Don Chandler added the extra point.

The Bears surged back at 14:44 of the same first period after Larry Morris intercepted a Tittle pass, intended as a fake screen to Phil King, and raced 61 yards from the Bears' 34 to the Giants' six. Wade sneaked home from the two on the second play and rookie Bob Jencks converted.

Chandler's field goal came at 5:11 of the second period after the Giants had moved 59 yards to the Bears three and then had failed to go in for the TD. Coach Allie Sherman had to settle for the field goal.

The Bears might have had another TD in the first half, for Charlie Killett fumbled the Bears' kickoff after their first score on the final play of the first period. Charlie Bivins recovered on the Giants' six but a Bear, believed to be Jencks, was offside on the kickoff and the play was called back.

Y. A. Hobbled

Tittle was hurt at 6:35 of the second period when he threw a down-and-out sideline pass to Gifford. It was ruled that Gifford was out of bounds when he made the catch. Tittle had slipped going back from the line of scrimmage and was hit by Larry Morris as he threw. He left the field for the rest of the half.

Dave Whitsett intercepted a Tittle pass in the third period but the Bears couldn't cash it in after two fine passes by Wade had moved the ball to the 21. Roger Leclerc's field goal try from the 28 was wide.

It was O'Bradovich who moved up and grabbed Tittle's screen pass, apparently intended for Joe Morrison that finally put the Bears in position for the killer.

Wade's 12-yard toss to Mike Ditka brought the ball to the Giants' one for a first down. Wade sneaked once but was stopped inches short. He went over on the second try and Jencks again converted.

Leclerc missed again from the 34 in the final period following Richie Petitbon's recovery of Joe Morrison's fumble at midfield.

With 1:33 to go Tittle gave it the last big effort. He moved the ball from the Giants' 16 to the Bears' 39 before Petitbon intercepted in the end zone. Bennie McRae had filched another Tittle pass in the Bear end zone with four minutes to go after Gifford, the intended receiver, slipped and fell on the five.

Huskers Take Final Swim; Punting Game Looks Better

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Miami, Fla. —Nebraska's Orange Bowl gridders took their final pre-New Year's Day swim Sunday as Husker coach Bob Devaney put an off-limits sign up for his squad on the beach adjoining team headquarters at the Ivanhoe here.

The Huskers romped in the sunny 75-degree weather Sunday morning, but then were told to forget about the Miami sun and swimming.

The move Sunday to ban swimming and any lengthy sessions in the sun is an effort to conserve strength for the New Year's Day battle against Auburn in the 39th annual Orange Bowl.

in full uniform Sunday, working on pass patterns and the kicking game.

Quarterback Dennis Claridge and Dave Theisen both got off some long punts during the afternoon session. Claridge's kicking form Sunday indicated he may have regained the punting touch that has been lacking since he was injured early in the season.

Theisen appeared to be recovered from a pulled groin muscle that had slowed him Saturday.

The Husker coaching staff also sent the NU gridders through offensive plays against Auburn defenses.

Fullback Bruce Smith and end Preston Love, both of whom had suffered minor injuries earlier in the week, were back at full speed Sunday, indicating the Huskers likely will be at their best physical strength since the opening of the season.

The Cornhuskers will work out Monday afternoon on the Orange Bowl turf for their

Fan Tires Of 'Squareness'

Miami, Fla.—Nebraska boys may no longer be "the squarest" if an Omaha dentist's efforts here are successful.

The dentist is Royce Swain, a Husker fan by way of Woodbine, Iowa, and Creighton University, who also writes songs and music when he isn't pulling teeth.

Swain's idea started after flinching for several years every time he heard Nebraska fans exclaiming the "squareness" of Husker males in the song "There Is No Place Like Nebraska."

final session before the New Year's Day clash. A trip to the horse races at Tropical Park is on tap for Tuesday.

Auburn, the Husker foe, drilled for a shorter period Sunday as Tiger coach Ralph (Shug) Jordan sent his troops through a 75-minute session in shorts.

A similar workout is slated by Auburn Monday and while the Huskers have Tuesday off, the Alabamians will work for about 30 minutes on the Orange Bowl sod.

"We're right on schedule . . . We don't want to leave our game on the practice field. We'll be at our peak on Wednesday," Jordan concluded after Sunday's drill.

"I got tired of hearing about the boys being the squarest while girls are the fairest," Swain explains. "So while in Minneapolis for the Minnesota game this year, I sat down and wrote another song."

Swain flew to Chicago last Sunday to record the song and arrived in Miami Saturday to try peddling the record on Miami juke boxes in areas where Husker fans were gathering for the New Year's Day Orange Bowl game.

Swain's song, entitled "Nebraska" was recorded with the David Carroll band.

Davis Cup Win Is Great Boost For U.S. Tennis

Sidney, Australia (P)—“Winning the Davis Cup should be a great boost for tennis in America,” Bob Kelleher, the happy United States Captain said Sunday night. “I think we finally have turned the corner.”

Kelleher, tall, smooth-talking Los Angeles attorney, and four members of the successful team boarded a transoceanic jet airliner at 7 p.m. for this long flight home.

With them was the massive silver bowl, symbol of world tennis supremacy, returning to the United States for the third time since 1951.

Watches Cup

“I don’t intend to let this thing get out of my sight until I officially turn it over to someone,” Kelleher said.

With him and the Cup were the two young collegians who broke Australia’s five-year monopoly—Wimbledon champion Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston—as well as reserve members Frank Froehling and Martin Riessen.

The fifth member, Gene Scott of St. James, N.Y., is remaining in Australia for the national championships starting in Brisbane Jan. 3.

At Honolulu the members break up to go their separate ways.

Ralston is anxious to get home and plans to reach Los Angeles early Tuesday morning. McKinley, his pretty wife Wylita and Capt. Kelleher and his wife Gracyn, will spend a few days soaking up the sunshine and hospitality in Honolulu, where the Cup also will stay temporarily.

Visit Relatives

Froehling plans to visit relatives in San Diego, Calif., before returning to Florida, where he will undergo an operation for an abscess on his back Jan. 3.

Riessen, son of the Northwestern University coach, arrives in Chicago on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the Australian press hailed the American victory and expressed concern over when this tennis-minded nation may regain its position of dominance.

The consensus is that the United States is ready to take over as the most powerful nation in the game.

In Driver’s Seat

“America now definitely is in the driver’s seat,” said

Don Lawrence, tennis authority for the Melbourne Age newspaper. “Australian strength is uncertain because of the player revolt. We may be trying to win back the Cup with a bunch of juniors and second raters.”

The reference was to the feud between Roy Emerson and four other top ranking Australian players and the Tennis Association of Australia over the association’s refusal to sanction overseas play before March 31.

Before taking off with the Davis Cup, Kelleher praised the performance of his team both on and off the courts.

“The one thing needed was a winning image,” he said. “Now we have it. And in Chuck and Dennis, we have two of the best amateurs in the world, two players whose personalities will help boost the game.”

Kelleher said that tremendous team spirit was the main ingredient of the Americans’ success in a summer-long, arduous Davis Cup campaign.

“This was a terrific bunch of boys,” Kelleher said. “Chuck and Dennis figured in some unpleasant incidents on their last trip here in 1960. They were labeled as trigger-tempered and bad actors.”

Perfect Gentlemen

“I can only say they were perfect gentlemen at all times and many Australians made points of telling us so when we prepared to leave.”

The captain said he was proud of the way McKinley and Ralston came through.

“In the final match against John Newcombe, Chuck wasn’t playing his best but determination brought him through. Dennis played well on the opening day and both were excellent in the doubles.”

Both McKinley and Ralston won over sensational Australian 19-year-old Newcombe, but both lost to veteran Australian champion Roy Emerson. So the doubles proved the key point.

“We tried to instill a feeling of confidence from the very start,” Kelleher said. “We went first class all the way and made the boys feel they were somebody. We tried to get them imbued with the idea that they were best like the New York Yankees. They proved they were.”

—BOMB REELS AUSSIES—

Emerson Will Defy LTAA Directive

Sidney, Australia (P)—Australia, once the most powerful tennis nation, still reeling from the loss of the Davis Cup to the United States was shaken again Sunday by another bombshell.

A group of leading players, including Australian champion Roy Emerson, flatly announced their intention to defy a Lawn Tennis Association of Australia directive limiting overseas activities.

The feud threatens to wreck the Davis Cup team.

The LTAA reiterated the stand that it would not allow players to accept expense money for tournaments prior to March 31.

The move was made to keep players in Australia for appearances in provincial towns.

Won’t Accept Ban

Emerson, who won the only two points in the losing Davis Cup battle against the United States, and who played superbly in the doubles, said he definitely did not intend to adhere to such a ban.

“I plan to play the Caribbean circuit and other tournaments before March 31,” Emerson, president of the newly formed players group, said.

I have other intentions which may not set well with the association.

“Until after Wimbledon I will be playing in the French and Italian championships and other tournaments on my own,” Emerson said.

This could bring a ban by the association which would make him ineligible for Davis Cup tennis.

Pro Offer Considered

Emerson and four other members of Australia’s top 10—Fred Stolle, Ken Fletcher, Bob Hewitt and Martin Mulligan—said they are seriously considering the pro offer made by Frank Sedgman, president of the Professional Tennis Players Association.

Sedgman said the group could join the pro tour and play for prize money which could earn them between $7,000 and 30,000 a year. No guarantee is made.

“We are looking into this alternative if the association persists with this ban,” Emerson said. The players are also considering migration to Britain.

Miami Swarming With 50,000 Sports Tourists

... NEBRASKANS FLOW IN

Miami, Fla.—An estimated 50,000 tourists have swarmed into this Florida city for the Orange Bowl Festival and before they leave Miami officials estimate they will spend an average of $40 per day.

A recent survey showed that the average tourist spends 5½ days here, meaning Greater Miami will be enriched to the cheerful tune of $11,000,000 during the next few days.

The Orange Bowl game between Nebraska and Auburn was officially declared a sell-out early Saturday, the earliest sellout in its 30-year history, Anderson noted.

“When people come in wanting tickets for the Orange Bowl game or the parade, we have to recommend the fireworks pageant or the pro play-off game,” Mrs. Anne Sterrett, the Orange Bowl ticket manager, said Sunday. “We still have a good supply of tickets for those events.”

However, pro game tickets are going twice as fast as last year, she said, and the fireworks show sales are slightly ahead.

The frenzied interest has been evident at all Orange Bowl events the past week. The fashion show, coaches’ stag, powerboat regatta and junior tennis tournament all drew the biggest crowds in the history of the sun-blessed festival.

“There are more visitors here than I have ever seen before,” Low Price, publicity director of the City of Miami, noted Sunday. Price said transportation facilities—airlines, bus lines and railroads—report that travel into the Miami area is up between seven and 20 per cent over a year ago.

“Judging from the amount of traffic on the roads, auto travel is up too,” Price added.

Nebraskans began arriving Sunday in large numbers to join the few Husker fans who had come in earlier. And those NU fans who did not make previous reservations were finding it difficult to obtain lodging.

Hotels and motels are filled as far north of here as Hollywood.

Nebraska fans have come from as far away as Hawaii with Dr. George Nakagawa coming in Sunday from Honolulu where he is a dentist.

Elliott Chews Out Gridders

Pasadena, Calif. (P)—Big Ten champion Illinois got an 11th hour chewing out by Coach Pete Elliott Sunday as the Illini began tapering off for their Rose Bowl game with Washington’s Huskies Wednesday.

Elliott interrupted a mid-afternoon workout to give his squad a stern six-minute lecture.

Elliott told his players they were in the Rose Bowl game as Big Ten champions and he wanted them to keep concentrating on that fact.

“If anybody thinks there is anything more important than this football game they can stay at our hotel headquarters,” Elliott barked at his squad. “I’m only interested in real football players from now until we play this game Wednesday.”

At a post-practice press conference, Elliott said his squad appeared “sort of dead and listless—I don’t know if it was the weather.”

After his sharp lecture, the Illini went through a 20-minute dummy scrimmage in which Elliott said “the boys look a little bit better.”

Iba’s Cowboys To Face Jinx

Kansas City (P)—Potent Kansas State will have a long-time jinx on its side against Henry Iba’s Oklahoma State team in the championship game of the 18th annual Big Eight basketball tournament Monday night.

Iba is in his 30th season at OSU and the 65-56 semifinal victory over Kansas was his 581st there. But in that span his teams have beaten K-State just once in 17 games.

K-State’s Willie Murrell, a 6-foot-6 smoothie with all the shots and 7-foot-Roger Suttner were at their best in the 84-67 semifinal victory over Missouri Saturday. A sellout crowd of 10,500 watched.

Missouri, 5-3, meets Kansas, 5-5, for third place in the first game of Monday’s double-header.

Iba’s lone victory over K-State came at Stillwater late in the 1962 season and cost the Wildcats the league championship. K-State has a 4-0 record against OSU in the tournament including a victory in the 1947 title game. This is K-State’s 10th trip into the tournament finals and the Wildcats will be seeking their seventh championship.

In the afternoon consolation games Monday, Iowa State meets Oklahoma for fifth place after Colorado faces Nebraska for seventh. Iowa State upset Colorado, 73-65, behind Steve Harmon’s 19 points and Oklahoma clipped Nebraska, 75-66, with Willie Wilson hitting 18 and Farrell Johnson 17.

Cook, Ewing Capture Swim Meet Trophies

Omaha—Kelly Cook and Stan Ewing of the Lincoln Swim Club won high point trophies for their respective age groups in the Christmas Swim Meet here.

Cook captured first places in the 100-yd freestyle and 200-yd individual medley events and added a second in the 100-yd butterfly in the boy’s 11-12 year old division.

Ewing shared high point honors in the boys 13-14 year old class with Steve George of Omaha by winning the 100-yd breaststroke and the 200-yd individual medley events, and finishing second in the 200-yd freestyle.

The meet included clubs from Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, and Kansas.

The Lincoln results:

BOYS 8 & UNDER

BOYS 9 & 10
50-yd Butterfly: 2, Mark Fouts; 50-yd Breaststroke: 5, John Blumer; 50-yd Freestyle: 4, Fouts; 100-yd Freestyle: 3, Dick Rob.

Swanhorst Paces Behlens, 120-81

Ceresco—The Stars of Behlens, aided by the shooting efforts of Bob Swanhorst, Jim Munford, and Al Maxey routed Elkhorn here Sunday, 120-81.

Swanhorst paced all scorers with 28 points, all from the field. Munford pumped in nine field goals and added eight of 11 from the charity stripe for a total of 26 while Maxey contributed 25 on 10 field goals and a perfect 5-5 from the line.

Jim Jimenez was high for Elkhorn with 25 points.

Finley Blasts KC; Refuses Proposal

Kansas City (P)—Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, accused the city of chicanery Sunday night in offering the baseball team office use of the Municipal Stadium rent free until Jan. 10.

Finley returned home to Chicago Saturday after a futile attempt to reach an agreement with the city for use of the stadium playing field and offices next season.

The old lease expires Dec. 31, but Mayor Ilius W. Davis and City Manager Carleton Sharpe had assured Finley he could stay until Jan. 10 without being bound by a new contract.

Annual Income Up $300 Per Person

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said Sunday annual income has increased $300 per person in the past three years and he predicted the steady upward trend will continue in 1964.

In his annual appraisal of the old year and outlook for the new, Hodges said personal income now averages $2,500 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Personal income includes wages, salaries, fees, rents, dividends on stock and other payments to individuals.

Predicts Advance
Hodges predicted that the economy will advance about five per cent next year if there is early enactment of a tax reduction bill.

He estimated the 1963 gross national product (GNP)—the sum of all goods and services, both private and public — at $584 billion, a gain of $30 billion, or 5.3% over the previous year.

By the end of the year, the economy had reached a rate that would produce a GNP of $600 billion a year. The commerce chief predicted the total for 1964 would be about $620 billion, which would represent an increase of more than five per cent even after allowing another one per cent for price increases.

Hodges said price rises accounted for about 1.5% of the higher GNP total for 1963. Thus, the actual gain after discounting price increases was 3.8%.

"The buoyancy of the 1964 expansion depends largely on the timing of the proposed tax reduction now before Congress," Hodges said.

Three Rough Spots
He noted three rough spots in the general outlook: high unemployment, unused plant capacity and the continuing, though diminished, flow of U.S. dollars to foreign countries.

However, there are far more favorable factors. "Total production, employment, purchasing power and business profits were higher than ever before," Hodges said, "and this expansion in economic activity came about with comparatively little rise in prices."

"At the end of the year demand in the important markets appeared to be strong and there was no evidence of major excesses that could be potential sources of instability in the near future."

He said corporate profits increased 30% since the recession low of early 1961. "With a tax cut," he added, "corporate profits both before and after taxes should increase substantially again in 1964."

Japanese Cabinet Approves Budget Over $9 Billion

Tokyo (AP) — The Japanese cabinet approved on Sunday a 1964 national budget of $9,042,883,333, an increase of 14.2% over this year's budget.

The budget, covering the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1964, will be submitted for approval to the Diet (Parliament) after it convenes Jan. 20.

The new budget calls for increased expenditures for public works, social welfare and education projects. Defense was allocated $764,355,555, an increase of $94,236,111 over the current outlay. The funds are to maintain a self-defense force of 273,126 men and construct several ships.

U.S. Grabs Anti-Cuba Bomb Boat

Miami (AP) — Seizure by U.S. authorities of a Cuban exile boat carrying bombs described as ticketed for Fidel Castro was reported Sunday by American and refugee sources.

Dr. Orlando Bosch, head of an anti-Castro revolutionary organization, said his men were taking the arms to a secret Caribbean base to be placed aboard two planes to bomb Havana.

The plan, Bosch said, called for dropping the bombs on Revolutionary Plaza next Thursday while Castro addresses a throng there celebrating his fifth anniversary as Cuba's leader.

David Cardoza, U.S. regional customs director, said customs agents, aided by the Coast Guard, seized the 18-foot motorboat Saturday night, detailed four Cubans aboard and confiscated four bombs.

12 Carried
Bosch said there were 12 bombs, six for each plane. His men threw eight overboard to avoid confiscation, he added.

Cardoza said the men were released without charge. Investigation of possible violation of U.S. neutrality laws continued, he added.

He said a second boat also was seized. Bosch said it was not connected with his group, the Revolutionary Recovery Insurrectional Movement.

Cardoza said the bombs were homemade and averaged 100 pounds. Also confiscated, he said, were detonators and blasting caps.

Big Plans
Bosch said, "We planned something big, something to which Castro would react violently, which would command international attention and could spark internal uprisings in Cuba."

"We first planned to bomb Havana during Khrushchev's intended visit there. When this visit was cancelled, we aimed at the Jan. 2 celebration. There will be many thousands of communists there for the event."

Bosch, so disappointed that he wept, told a news conference. "We protest this confiscation of our property by the United States. The United States will let only those on its payroll fight Castro. All Cubans should have the privilege of fighting for their country."

Week of Prophet's Beard

New Delhi (UPI) — The Indian government dispatched two senior investigators from its central intelligence bureau to Srinagar in Kashmir Sunday to help find a sacred hair from the beard of the Prophet Mohammed.

Theft of the relic from a mosque shrine touched off a series of wild Moslem riots in which at least two demonstrators were reportedly killed by police gunfire. Several policemen were said to have been injured by rocks thrown by the angry mob.

There were political overtones to the rioting and speculation that its cause lay in the dispute between India and Pakistan over rights to Kashmir, a divided state bordering on Communist China. Srinagar is the capital city of Indian-controlled Kashmir.

Urgent Duty

"It is our most urgent duty to recover this sacred relic without delay," said Home Minister G. L. Nanda.

The Kashmir government offered a $21,000 reward for recovery of the hair and a $105 annual lifetime stipend for anyone providing a valid clue to the theft.

The Press Trust India news agency reported that 12 Moslems were arrested and charged with arson. The group included a leader of the so-called Plebiscite Front which supports neighboring Pakistan's demand for a United Nations-sponsored vote on the future status of Kashmir.

The police also arrested the wealthy nephew of former Kashmir Premier Sheikh Abdullah, who has been in prison for the past 10 years for allegedly plotting Kashmir's separation from India.

Saturday's riot was quelled by police after they fired rifle shots into the air and tear gas bombs into the midst of the mob.

Dual Purpose

State Premier Shamsuddin established a special headquarters for the dual purpose of keeping the peace and locating the hair.

Reports reaching New Delhi said the riot began with processions by the Kashmir Political Conference which is considered pro-Pakistan in the territorial dispute.

It was also reported that a Moslem shrine and the homes of three Moslem divines were burned at Kishtwar, a village 80 miles from Jammu, another Kashmir city. The biggest Moslem demonstrations ever seen in Jammu followed those burnings, according to press reports. They were said to have been peaceful, however, with crowds carrying black flags in long processions.

16-Year Disput

Kansas-sized Kashmir has been the object of a dispute between India and Pakistan since 1947. It is divided by a cease-fire line, and occupied by both Indian and Pakistani troops.

The northern part and a small strip along the western border, roughly a third of the country's territory, is under Pakistani control. The valley of Srinagar, Jammu and Ladakh are under the Indian-controlled Kashmir government.

The country is bounded by India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Communist China and Tibet. Kashmir is separated from the Soviet Union by only a few miles of Red Chinese and Afghan territory.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Pakistan Proves Advantages Of Free Enterprise Concepts

By Merryly S. Rukeyser

The immense potential energies inherent in concepts of free enterprise, individual initiative and the profit motive have been reaffirmed in the past decade and a half in Karachi, a commercial center of Pakistan and a principal port on the Arabian Sea of all of central Asia.

During my recent visit there, I sensed the pioneering spirit of a boom city, whose residents had indeed lifted themselves by their bootstraps. Six hundred new diversified industrial plants had sprung into being in a vast new industrial complex.

The accomplishments are all the more spectacular in light of the pessimism which existed at the time the British Government withdrew from the subcontinent in 1947. West and East Pakistan, separated from each other by a thousand miles of Indian territory, were fashioned as a haven for the Muslims to give them independence from the dominant Hindus of India. At the time, skeptics predicted almost immediate collapse of the Pakistani economy, which rested almost exclusively on primitive and relatively inefficient agriculture. The strides made in attempting to balance agriculture with diversified industry are remarkable, even though there is still a large gap in the balance of international payments and the country is not yet self sufficient.

As a result, it is still felt necessary to ration foreign exchange, and a host of regulatory red tape imposes obstacles on those hell bent for dynamic progress. The head of one of the important British banks in Karachi told me that those on the scene were so conscious of the day to day frustrations of controls that they barely realized the extent of the industrial breakthrough.

In the spirit of objective reporting, I wanted to be sure that I was not getting from local boosters Chamber of Commerce palaver. Accordingly, I made a personal inspection of the new factory areas surrounding the city. The realities of the development were further verified by the restrained spokesman for the State Bank, the government owned reserve system. (Parenthetically, the multiplicity of rationing and government imposed priorities creates potentials for favoritism and corruption, but informed local observers argue that there was less of this than in India.)

Generalization are hazardous on the vast subcontinent, which is a great area of contrasts and contradictions, but businessmen and bankers in Karachi contended that Pakistan was free from much of the ideological controversies which beset India, where there is jealousy between proponents of a "public" or government sector vs. a "private" sector.

Some think that the flow of voluntary private capital, foreign and domestic, is retarded by the fear on the part of private enterprisers that they may be stepping on the toes of centralized planners who may think that a given business activity should be reserved for the "public sector."

An able economist in Pakistan pointed out that there is this difference in ideological approach in the two principal nations in the subcontinent. While in India powerful politicians are determined to expand the "public sector," he said that in Pakistan there is less of a doctrinaire approach and more zeal in getting things accomplished. He said that, instead of seeking to expand the "public sector," Pakistan was ready to leave to private enterprise those activities which it was able and willing to undertake.

But where there have been gaps, based on insufficient private capital or other resources, government stepped in to establish high priority industries, and after developing them undertook to transfer them to the "private sector" through the sale to investors of capital share in government-financed companies.

This parallels a trend in West Germany toward "privatization" of some industries hitherto government owned. And of course in the United Kingdom, the Conservatives restored the steel industry to private ownership.

The same Pakistani source remarked that, while there was much more free enterprise in his country than in India, that Pakistan had less freedom than India in the political and civil rights area.

Foreign Capital

In India, informed Cabinet members recognize the need of encouraging foreign private capital and business enterprises to come in, and T. T. Krishnamachari, Minister of Finance of India, remarked to me that his country intended to woo private investment. N. Kanungo, Minister of Industries, in discussing this pivotal matter with me, stated that, though India was not publicizing the policy, it was permitting foreign investors freedom to get exchange to repatriate profits earned in India and capital funds invested there.

However, a spokesman for the official State Bank in Pakistan declared that his country had made an actual commitment to foreign investors as to freedom to repatriate profits and capital funds. Incidentally, I asked an executive at the Bank how soon Pakistan would stop rationing foreign exchange in general. He hesitated to set a timetable, but it is obvious that before this can be assured the country has to go further toward achieving economic self sufficiency.

The late Benjamin Strong, first president of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and one of the great builders of the American central banking system, once remarked to me that finance is the book-keeping side of business. In the relatively underdeveloped countries, with soft currency, there is still the illusion, however, that money manipulation is an alternative, or a substitute, for developing and heightening domestic overall productivity.

In discussing this point in a meeting at New Delhi with Prime Minister Nehru, I mentioned the good will hope of Americans that India with democratic political institutions would make progress toward achievement of its economic goals. Although the recent mid-term report on the current five year plan reflected falling short of objectives, the Prime Minister expressed confidence in ultimate success.

I mentioned the importance of getting support from a system of private incentives and rewards, and the Prime Minister expressed the view that India was moving in this direction, although outside observers think that the impact of theories of Fabian Socialism and observation of the attainments of the Soviet Union had created some intellectual confusion and some trend to drift in the direction of "a mixed economy."

Mr. P. F. Dwyer will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.

SMOKING IS BAD FOR STUDENTS

Cleveland (AP)—Evidence that smoking may impair the intellectual faculties of high school teen-agers was reported by a New York biology teacher.

Describing a survey he made in an unidentified school among certain smoking and non-smoking students, George E. Caraker of Eastridge High School in Rochester said it "indicates that smokers in high schools are poor graders, take easy courses, are poor risks in attendance, politeness and general reliability."

He told the 130th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that his study further indicated that "smoking also tends to create disorders of personality which cause disorders of memory."

Goes To The Head

The educator said the apparent link noted between smoking and decreased mental ability might result from "the absorption into the blood of toxins, originating from smoke, that are eventually distributed to the mechanism of memory and intelligence which is located in the cerebral cortex of the cerebrum of the brain."

Declaring that "there seems to be little doubt in the minds of many" that smoking can cause physical disease, such as lung cancer and cardiovascular disorders, Caraker said it might be that psychological impairments are also associated with the mechanisms that produce such ills. And he indicated that his findings of poor grades among the high school smokers tended to bolster that view.

The tobacco industry and its scientific advisory committee have repeatedly challenged the views of all those scientists who link smoking with physical disease, even as only a contributory cause. The view of the industry and its scientists is that all evidence reported to that effect is merely statistical, without real scientific proof of a cause-and-effect relationship.

Correlation.

Caraker noted that the American Cancer Society—which has long held that cigarette smoking is the major cause of lung cancer—had found in a survey of 30,000 high school students that there is a sharp increase in smoking as grade status and age advances.

For his own research, Caraker matched a group of 180 smokers with an equal number of non-smokers of comparable age and grade status in a school where smoking permits are issued by school authorities with the permission of the parents.

Among his findings: 1. While the distribution of intelligence quotients of both groups was the same, "the average grade among the smokers hardly reached a low D—while the non-smokers were little less than a B average."

Not Good Enough

2. While 102 of the smokers possessed an average IQ and therefore "ought to be good enough for a C grade," they were not.

3. The non-smokers took tougher courses than the smokers.

Caraker recommended: 1. That parents "set an example"—presumably by at least reducing their smoking.

2. That the United States create "the British-type of anti-smoking clinic installed to help those who find difficulty in giving up smoking."

3. "Effective restriction" on the sale of tobacco to children.

4. Wider restriction of smoking in public places.

Be Advised

5. That purchasers be advised of the tar and nicotine content of the smoke in cigarettes.

6. Discontinuance of the practice of issuing smoking permits to young people in high schools.

"Ignoring these issues," he said, "means that the scope of intellectual deterioration among young people will increase, and that they face premature deaths through cancer of the lungs and other related diseases such as cardiovascular deficiencies."

LBJ Gives Out '40-Litre' Hats

Stonewall, Tex. (UPI)—President Johnson handed out traditional Texas 10-gallon hats to West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and other German guests Sunday during a barbecue in an elementary school gymnasium.

Johnson passed the first hat—a 40-litre hat in German measurement—to Dr. Werner Von Braun, the rocket scientist.

"I want him to wear it for the rest of this decade," Johnson said, "then put it on the moon."

Erhard kept his hat on and Johnson drove off for the LBJ Ranch.

Big Helping
Johnson took a big helping of everything served, including barbecued beef, cole slaw, potato salad and red beans. Erhard ate a small helping of beef and potato salad but took it easy on the slaw and beans.

The approximately 300 persons at the barbecue sat at wooden tables with red, checkered tablecloths. They ate in a pre-World War II former Air Force post office that serves as the gymnasium for Stonewall Elementary School.

The tables were decorated with old kerosene lanterns, wagon wheels. Saddles and bales of hay were placed between the tables.

The food was prepared in a chuck wagon in front of the gym.

Their arrival attracted more than 100 townspeople, tourists and Fredericksburg High School's 32 member "Billiettes," a girls' German dancing group.

Song In German
Later, the Fredericksburg St. Mary's School chorale sang "Deep in the Heart of Texas"—in German.

Pianist Van Cliburn's 20-minute concert was the highlight of the entertainment that followed the barbecue. But he was not the only pianist.

Johnson called on Presidential Press Secretary Pierre Salinger to play during the handing out of the Texas hats to the German visitors.

Salinger is "one of the most qualified men in Washington," Johnson said. "And his hat size is the same now as when he first came to Washington."

It took Johnson and Erhard about 20 minutes to get through the crowd outside the gym as they left. Johnson shook hands of dozens of persons and kissed several women, including Mrs. J. Frank Dobie, wife of the famed Texas folklorist and author.

Prince To Marry

Amman, Jordan (UPI)—Prince Mohammad, 23-year-old brother of King Hussein, will marry Fariha Irshaid on Jan. 9, the palace announced.

Two-Car Wreck Injures 2 Women

Norma A. Wilcox, 58, of 709 So. 50th, was listed in good condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Sunday night after the car she was driving was involved in a two-car collision at 27th and Van Dorn. Police said the Wilcox vehicle was southbound on 27th when it was in collision with an eastbound car driven by Francis Litzenberg, 77, of 1413 No. 63rd.

Maude H. Wilcox, 56, also of 709 So. 50th, was treated at Bryan for minor injuries and was released.

Hindemith, 68, Dies; Famous As Composer

Frankfurt, Germany (AP)—Paul Hindemith, one of the most versatile musicians of the century and a pioneer of modern composition, died in a hospital of a circulatory ailment Saturday night. He was 68.

A prolific writer, his works included operas, symphonies, ballets, string quartets, trios for piano, violin and cello sonatas for violin, viola and cello, violin concertos and organ compositions. Perhaps his best-known poem was the symphonic poem, "Matthis der Maier."

Hindemith sought to start again from the classic forms of Bach and pre-Bach composers and create a style determined solely by form rather than by Romantic expression.

Hindemith was born Nov. 16, 1895, at Hanau. Showing a marked inclination for music from his earliest childhood, he proved an able violinist at 11. He studied at Hochschule für Musik in Frankfurt-am-Main under Arnold Mendelssohn and at 20 became concert master at the Frankfurt Opera House.

The Nazis banned his works in 1933 as un-German. Adolf Hitler violently disliked Hindemith's music.

The composer toured the United States as a violinist in 1938, and then taught at Yale and the Berkshire Music Center before moving to Switzerland in 1953.

CAPT. RICKENBACKER

Rickenbacker Retires; 'Crusade' To Continue

New York (AP)—Capt. Edward V. (Eddie) Rickenbacker, World War I flying ace, announced his retirement Sunday as head of Eastern Air Lines to crusade for "the American way of life."

The 73-year-old adventurer turned executive resigned as chairman of the board, as a director and as general manager of the line.

Rickenbacker, politically a conservative and an outspoken anti-Communist, said in a letter to the board:

"I do not plan to be idle—not in the face of the current challenge to civilization."

To Expand Crusade
"I am going to expand my crusade to save the American way of life for future generations. As I want our children, our grandchildren, and those who follow them to enjoy the American opportunities, which have been mine for 73 years."

Rickenbacker heads an anti-Communist organization known as the Committee for the Preservation of the Monroe Doctrine.

He said Eastern Air Lines was "in good hands" with the election two weeks ago of Floyd D. Hall as president and chief executive officer.

Hall had been senior vice president.

He enlisted in World War I and became staff driver for Gen. John J. Pershing. He won a transfer to combat duty with the famed 94th Aero "Hat-in-the-Ring" Squadron and shot down 21 enemy planes and five balloons to become America's ace of aces.

Decorated
He won the Medal of Honor and numerous other decorations.

Rickenbacker had perhaps his greatest adventure in World War II—24 days on an open life raft—and for a time there was little hope for his survival.

He was on a mission for the secretary of war when a bomber in which he was flying crashed into the Pacific. Despite a lack of food and water, he managed to keep the hopes of six companions alive until rescue came.

Rickenbacker, in cooperation with William F. Buckley Jr., editor of National Review, a conservative magazine, formed the Committee for the Preservation of the Monroe Doctrine in 1962.

Its stated objective was to protest terms on which the late President Kennedy settled the Cuban dispute with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Here's How To Work It

One letter simply stands for another, in this example, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
